VOLUME TWELVE

PUBLISHED BY

The Class of '10, University of Arkansas

FAYETTEVILLE, ARKANSAS

1908-1909

Dedication

To

President John N. Tillman

who, by his sheer force of character and untiring perseverance, has placed the University on a higher collegiate basis than it has ever occupied before, this volume of The Cardinal is gratefully dedicated.

GREETING

For the Junior Class of the University of Arkansas, the CARDINAL staff presents this, the '09 CARDINAL, to the University, hoping that its numerous flaws may be overlooked, and that it may succeed in presenting some idea of a true picture of college life at the University during the past year. We hope that within these covers there may be found something that will bring a smile or a fond recollection to someone. We do not hope that our CARDINAL is perfect. If it were, it would hardly be real. But what we do hope is that you will be generous in your criticism of its all too evident weak points.

By an uncontrollable law of nature we have been forced to roast most of you. We hope you will take it in good part. If you find that you have been roasted, look on the next page and take comfort in what the other fellow got.

We have made no effort to arrange the material according to a perfect model of English. We have only attempted to record some of the things that throw a charm and glamour around the student's life at the University. Remember that it is of you and your deeds that we have written.

We wish to extend our most hearty thanks to every one who has in any way helped in the compilation of this book.

THE FACULTY

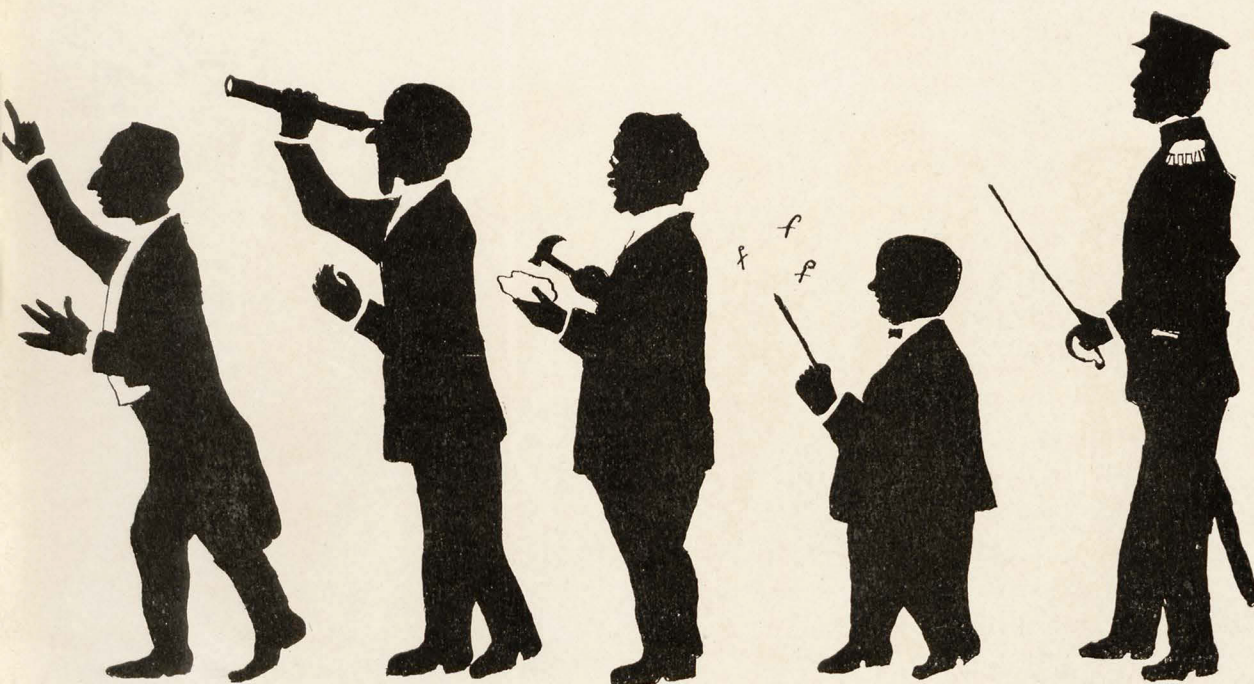

No truer design of life can be
Than this of our dear President, John T.
For, always, when he says, "I understand,"
We see the glasses in his hand.

Next comes a bag, of a color green,
Many, many a time have we seen
Under this bag a Prof., tall and slim,
And all the students admire him.

Then here is the biologist, Dr. Pickell.
What does he carry? Can you tell?
With this problem you may combat,
But I will pronounce it a—tom cat.

Dr. Carroll, the Chemist, now appears with a flask,
What he intends to do, you may ask.
Probably he will drink to the man who can menace
His superiority at playing tennis.

A philosopher, a human skull within his hands,
Next in the row stands.
Let him feel your head, with look sublime,
And he will tell your future, he did mine.

FACULTY—Cont.

An orator next, of no mean note,
And for him as a popular Prof. you should vote.
Says he: "Hitch your wagon to a star,
And your progress you shall not mar."

Prof. Droke is gazing into the heaven
To see if new stars have ariven.
In astronomy he is well versed,
And if you know not Math I. you're accursed.

A Geologist now comes, and with his "Proceed, proceed,"
Leads his students o'er hill and mead.
And the student who doesn't win, "True, true"
Will the examination day rue.

The big man, you say, is a foot ball player;
But no, he's the musician of the U. of A.
Truly a wonderful musician is he,
And of music much can he teach thee.

"Forward, march." Imperatively calls a voice,
And the line moves forward, its only choice,
Into the President's office it goes,
Where a faculty meeting is proposed.

AN APPRECIATION

We have a faculty at the University of Arkansas of which we should justly be proud. It is composed of some of the most learned men of the Southwest. In looking over the list of our faculty, we find that seventeen have Master's degrees from the most reputable Universities of the United States and Europe. Each member of the faculty seems to be peculiarly suited for his position. Every student knows that no one is better in Latin than Prof. Futrall; that Prof. Droke knows all about Mathematics; that Prof. Knoch is the only man to teach Civil Engineering, and that no one knows such a mass of economic facts as Dr. Brough. Many of the faculty have given practically all of the work of their lives to the University and to the youth of Arkansas.

The members of the faculty are devoted to what they think is the interests of the University. Most of them have helped make the University of Arkansas what it is to-day, having been connected with her for many years. They have seen a rise in her enrollment from five hundred to nearly twelve hundred, and the number of buildings and conveniences increased many fold.

Very often the student body takes the wrong position with reference to the faculty. They have a tendency to regard the faculty only as a symbol of authority and not as made up of teachers who have the interest of the students at heart. Although we as students may not be grateful enough at present to these men who are giving their lives for our good, yet in after life we will doubtless look back upon them as upon men whom we have patterned after and whose characters have been stamped on our characters.

FACULTY

JOHN CLINTON FUTRALL, M. A.,

Professor of Ancient Languages

"Seldom smiles, and smiles in such a way,
As if he mocked himself and scorned his spirit."
"Jack" runs a "cinch" course, and if you are looking for something easy we would advise you to see him at once and "avoid the rush."

GEORGE WESLEY DROKE, A. M.,

Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy

When anyone wants to wring a few more dollars out of the student body for athletics or any old thing, they have only to go to "Daddy" and ask him to spring a few jokes in Chapel, or at a foot ball rally. In fact, "Daddy" is coming to have quite a reputation as the athletic association's pickpocket.

JULIUS JAMES KNOCH, M. S., C. E.,

Professor of Civil Engineering

We have heard no kicks against this sawed off Prof., consequently it is rather a difficult proposition to roast him. From his looks and name, you would think that he was related to the great Julius Caesar, but there is nothing to it: Caesar swam the Rubicon, but this Prof. would bridge it.

WILLIAM NATHAN GLADSON,

M. S., E. E., Ph. D.,

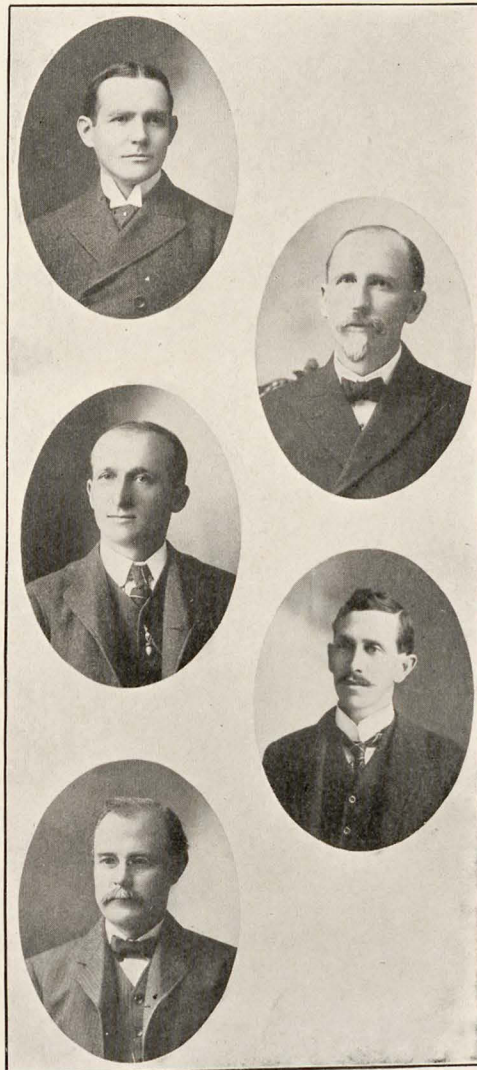

Professor of Electrical Engineering

"Dutchy" spends his vacations selling lightning rods. It is estimated that he saved Arkansas at least ten million dollars in the last two years. He is at present perfecting a scheme by which the lightning, given out by the lightning bugs, can be utilized. Let the good work go on. "There are a lot of people worse than "Dutchy."

ALBERT HOMER PURDUE, A. B.,

Professor of Geology and Mining

Some teachers merit so much that they are extremely exacting of their pupils, "true, true" they can ask "thought" questions that will keep you from "talking in a circle," and make an easy lesson hard by "hurriedly" injecting their "Proceed, proceed." But if you wish to have it easy this year, select your major in that field, where indifference excuses you from exams, and the Senior gets full consideration (in the form of an exam) for a daily grade of G.

FACULTY

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

FRANK WELBORN PICKEL,

A. B., M. Sc.,

Professor of Biology

The thing for which he is most noted is not the way in which he springs such big words in the Biology class, but more the evident anger with which he greets any jovial appreciation of them. "Grasshoppers belong to the order Orthoptera" (I do not see anything funny about this). "It is of the family Acrididae." (There is time to laugh and not to laugh). "It is of the genus Rhomoleum." (This is one of the times you had better not laugh.)

WILLIAM SMITH JOHNSON, PH. D.

Professor of Philosophy and Pedagogy

To roast the Doctor is like taking candy from a baby. He has seen more of the world and heard more lies, perhaps, than any other member of the faculty. He has a peculiar way of saying: "Yes, let me see, that is what the book says. Me, for instance, and while in Yale, I was a classmate of the author of this book, etc., ad ridiculosum."

JOHN HUGH REYNOLDS, A. M.

Professor of History and Political Science

This Prof. is "under indictment for ignorance," and if he is convicted, he will be put "under the ground" where he will surely sprout and increase the crop of Ps an hundred fold. He is the object of a great deal of affection on the part of new students from accredited schools, and especially when they are lacking in some required work.

BURTON NEILL WILSON, B. Sc., M. E.

Professor of Mechanical Engineering

Wilson is one of the sharks. It is doubtful whether he will make it through this year on mechanics, or not. But from the way he has succeeded in skinning the Boys' Dormitory on the heat proposition, it seems likely he ought to go through, with drums beating and colors flying.

CHARLES HILLMAN BROUGH,

A. M., LL. B., PH. D.,

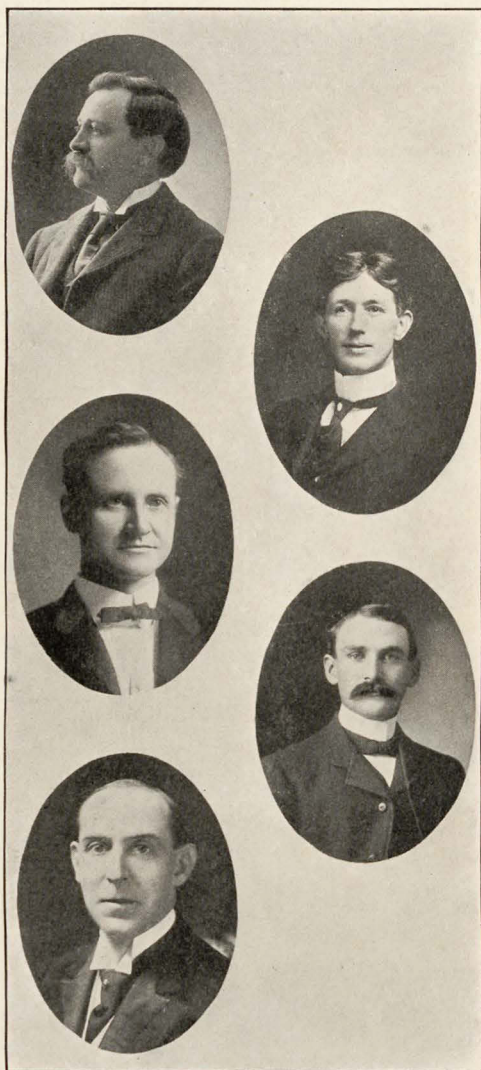

Professor of Economics and Sociology

"Gentlemen, we have a continuation of the tariff. Mr. George, can you explain what is meant by the maximum and minimum tariffs? or, in other words, you are quite sure, are you not, that there is a tariff on steel rails and pulp?"

George: "Yes, Dr."

Dr. Brough: "Mr. Grubbs (and by the way, Mr. George has very ably discussed this subject), don't you think that trust-made articles should be placed on the free lists?"

To make a hit with the Dr., pay close attention to the arrangement of his question, and the tone of his voice, and do not let your own opinion influence your answer.

CARROLL FALCONER ARMISTEAD,

A. B.,

Commandant

Nearly every student in the University has had occasion to visit the Captain's office and all receive a warm reception. If you want to make a hit with the Captain, avoid all military formalities, walk up to him, slap him on the shoulder and say: "Say, look'ee here, Old Pal," and results will not be long forthcoming. The Captain is a lion among the ladies and a pet among the "Preps."

BOLLING JAMES DUNN, M. A.,

Associate Professor of Mathematics

"Pappy," as he is generally known, looks like the villain in a ten cent show, and if many of us did not know him, we would become frightened at the first glance. But "Pappy" is easy in Math. 1, and as he gives out problems in class he amuses himself by wrapping one leg around the other. It is rumored that he will give an exhibition sometime in the near future, in order to raise money for the Athletic Association.

ANTONIO MARINONI, A. M.,

Professor of Romance Languages

He is married now. "Nuff sed."

EDGAR FINLEY SHANNON, A. B.,

Professor of English

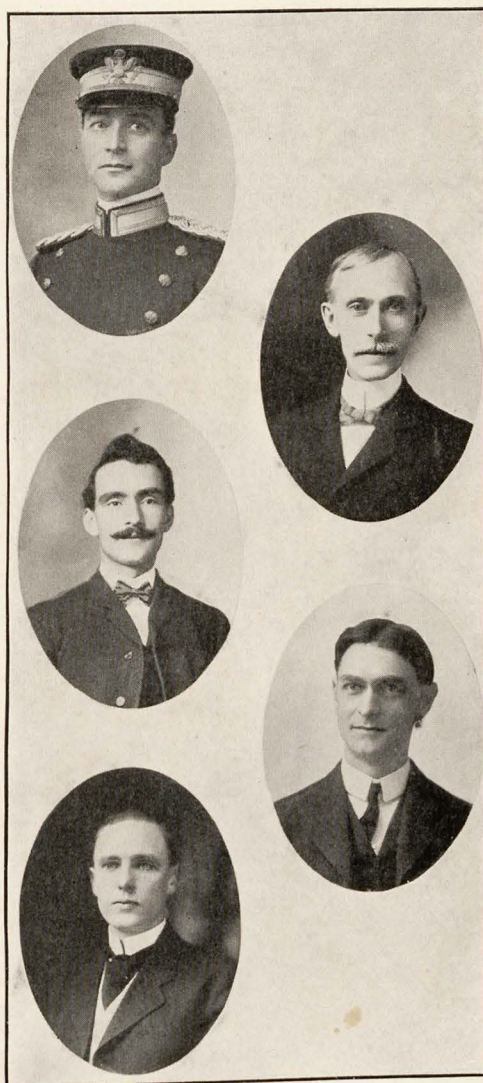

The Prof., like most English Profs., has slang for a hobby. He is, with many of his pupils, the ideal Prof. of the University. He seldom looks at a text book, and never refers to it in class. He has lately become distinguished as a "Stand patter against giving credit to any collegiate debaters." While discussing this subject in a faculty meeting, he uttered this time honored and eloquent expression: "Never, never as long as the stars and moon shall sh'ne, will I yield one iota to th's request of a diabolical student."

CHARLES CREIGER CARROLL,

A. M., PH. D.,

Professor of Chemistry

He has had the responsibility of the Glee Club thrust upon him, but with his musical turn he will be able to acquit himself creditably. Tennis, though, is his long suit. He talks, hears, thinks, sees, smells, and tastes love games and didn't get a hit in the last year's Senior-Faculty base ball game.

CHARLES FREDERIC ADAMS,
B. Agr., A. M., M. D.,

Dean of the College of Agriculture

Nature evidently intended him to be a bright and shining light for some misguided community, but his environments made him a buggist. He seems to take delight in slaying these harmless "critters." He is a lion in his element (among the bugs), but when it comes to "masticating the muslin" he gets seasick, consequently he is hopelessly stuck in the habits of a buggish old bachelor.

ERNEST WALKER, B. S. A.,
Professor of Horticulture

This Prof. is especially noted by the delicious flavor of the apples he raises. He succeeded in buttin' his way into Who's Who, and since then has contented himself with the strenuous life of a college Prof. He has one of the hardest courses in school, and unless you wish to do some cramming, avoid his department. "Why," he says, "there is no comparison between my course and the engineering courses." The poor, deluded fellow is full of prunes.

RUFUS J. NELSON, M. S.,
Professor of Agriculture

Were it not for Rufus what would become of the farming interests in Arkansas? But didn't he vote for college credit on inter-collegiate debates at that great, autocratic convention? That is enough to give him a passport into our good graces. He is at present engaged in perfecting a scheme whereby he can raise potatoes successfully in dry weather by planting onions among them. The onions, he thinks, will make the eyes of the potatoes water and thus furnish moisture enough to weather the drought.

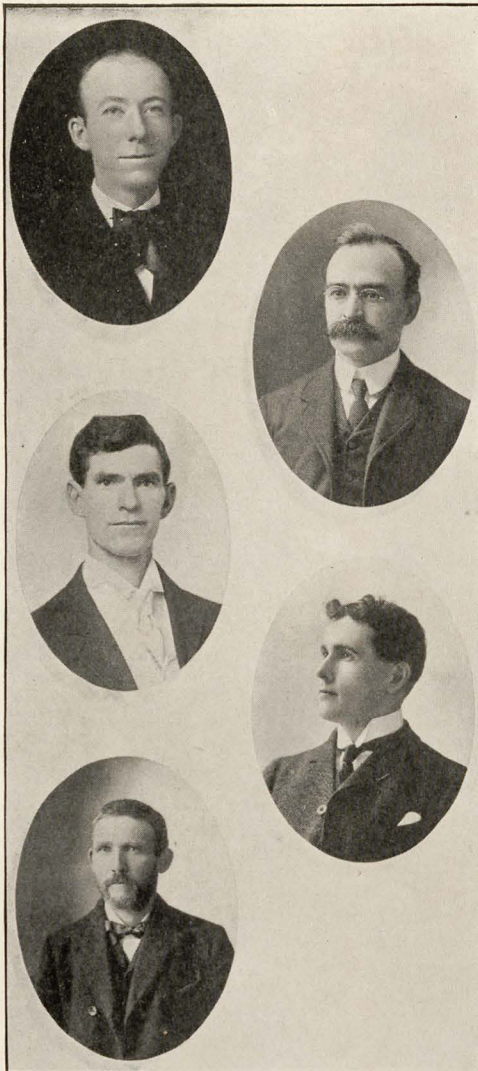

VICTOR ALBERT HOOPER,
Professor of Dairy Husbandry

How this Prof. succeeded in buttin' his way into the faculty, has always been a mystery to many of us. He is noted principally for his grand style of riding. In his wide and varied experience, he has probably milked more cows than any other member of the faculty.

ROBERT ROBSON DINWIDDIE,
M. D., V. S.,

Professor of Veterinary Science

We have this Prof. at our mercy. He has promised us the cigars if we will only not roast him. So when the CARDINAL comes out we shall pass gently by the Experiment Station lest we disturb any of the dark shadows that hover about his department.

MRS. WILLIE VANDEVENTER
CROCKETT,

Elocution

Her favorite expression is: "Small people should be seen and not heard."
We will forbear to roast her.

WILLIAM ALLEN RAMSEY, B. S.,
Principal of the Preparatory Department

He is practically dictator of "Prepdom," and his word is law in that department. His countenance is rather cross-grained and weather beaten, due partly to his nature and partly to his habitation among the "Preps." But he means no harm by his looks. By his famous lecture on Ben Franklin last year, he made himself a great divine among his tribesmen.

ARTHUR McCRACKEN HARDING,
B. A.,

Associate Professor of Mathematics

This little man is such a good Math. teacher that it would be a sin to roast him.

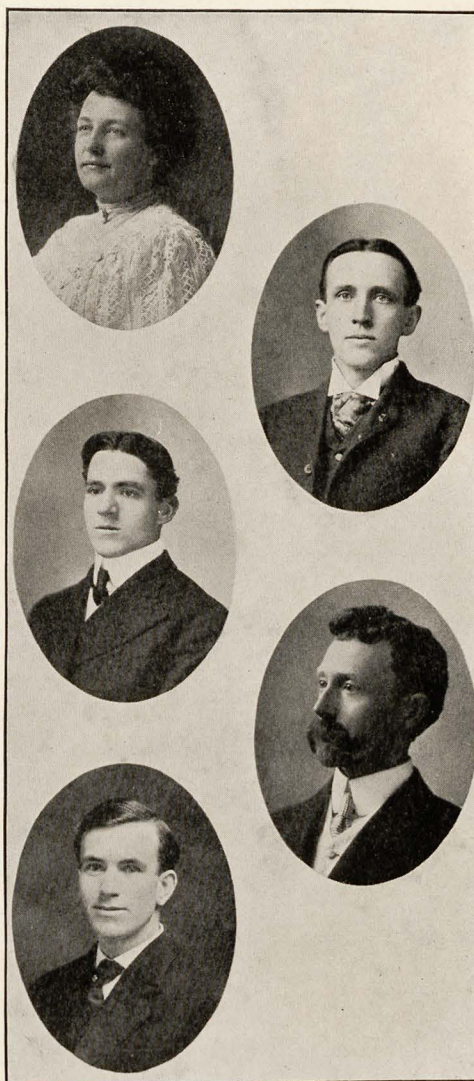

DAVID YANCEY THOMAS, PH. D.,
Associate Professor of History and Political Science

"A mighty man is he, with strong and sinewy hands,
And the muscles of his brawny arms are strong as iron bands."

He is frequently mistaken by the students for the Commandant. He is the very impersonation of energy, thrift, and enthusiasm. He seldom, if ever, looks into a book. "It seems to me," he often repeats, "that Burgess takes the right view of this when he says, 'It would be better if some of you in the back part of the room would lower your pedal extremities.'"

GARLAND GREEVER, M. A.,
Associate Professor of English

Prof. Greever calls examination week a week of holidays. By making known this opinion of examinations, he has given room for quite a deal of speculation, as to where he went to college. The Prof. is exceedingly fond of jokes.

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

ELIZABETH GALBRAITH,

Art

Unmarried.

LEE SEDWICK OLNEY, B. E. E.,

Associate Professor of Electrical Engineering

We haven't any kick coming against this Prof. but he belongs to the E. E. bunch and therefore is not above suspicion. He seldom visits the chapel and when he does he takes a back seat, and looks as wise as the best of 'em. It has been rumored that he was married Christmas.

VIRGIL PROCTOR KNOTT, B. C. E.,

Associate Professor of Civil Engineering

This young man is all right. He may be a little kiddish, but time will wear that off. Like all civil engineers, he rather dotes on that department. He cuts Chapel by the wholesale, and bids fair to get out on F. in C. E. 1.

ALVIN ARTHUR STEEL, B. S.

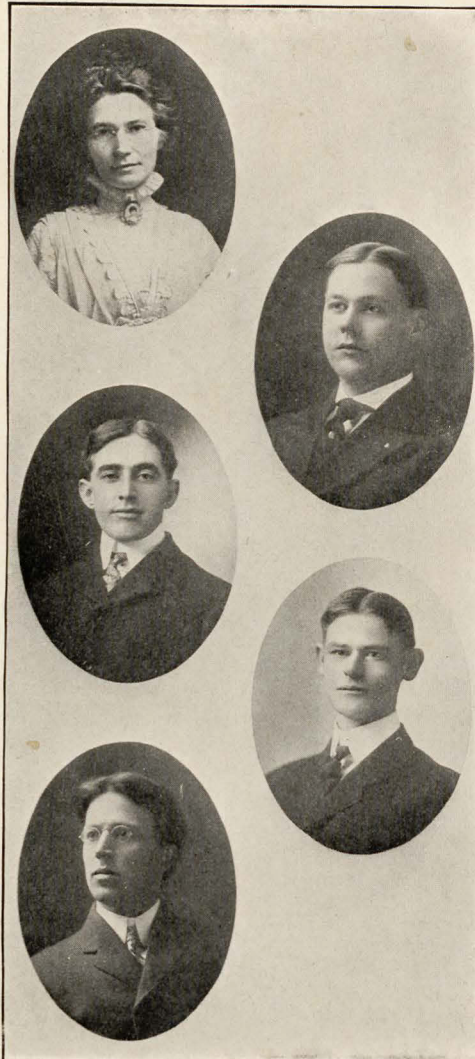

Associate Professor of Geology and Mining

This Prof. has seen a great deal of the world, but has never realized any practical benefits from his travels for he spent all his time hunting worthless shells. He is one of the most knowing Profs. in the University. He is young yet and bids fair to make his mark if he will only quit his shell habit and get down to work.

RIPLEY, B. S., M. S.,

Professor of Physics

Some of the students say cutting things about this Prof. They even say he has caught the "dying habit" from some of his ancestors, and that he "ate an egg" which had been "laid perhaps centuries ago" (not kept on ice, either,) and lots of other things, too, of which we will not make mention as he is a new Prof. here and bids fair to add laurels to the U. of A. crown.

MISS JOBELLE HOLCOMBE, M. A.,
Dean of Women

It is rather hard to say cutting things about a lady. Somehow or other they all have our sympathies. But, my, the way she lords it at Carnall Hall would do justice to Napoleon himself. Outside of her department she has a decided preference for things pertaining to the Bugology (Etymology) Course and is fond of all bugs, especially those of the brighter hue.

HENRY DOUGHTY TOVEY, B. Mus.,
Director of the Music Department

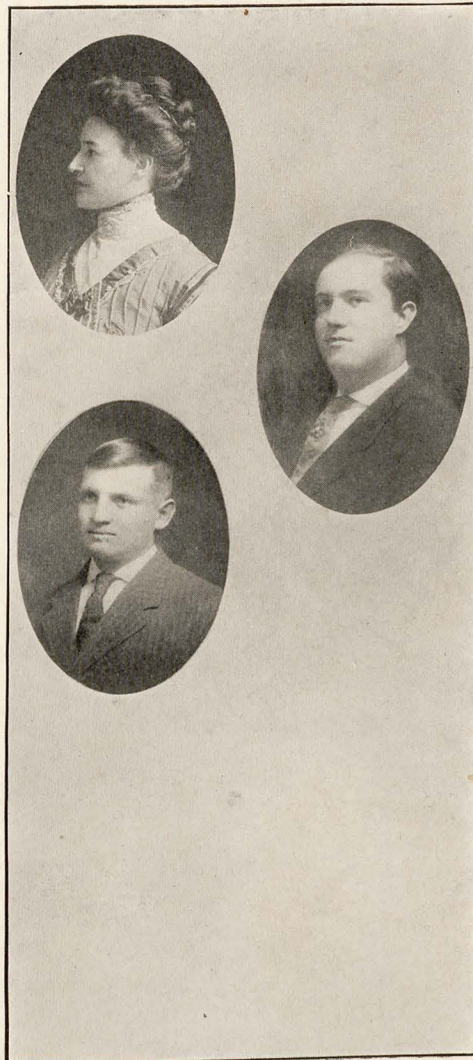

We certainly appreciate Prof. Tovey's self-denial in teaching music for us, for we feel sure that he could do better for himself as a foot ball coach. We deny the charge, however, that he weighs four hundred pounds.

HUGO BEZDEK, M. A.,
Athletic Director

In stature short, but in diameter great. His receipt for strength and ferocious power is raw beef. Everything is just left with him and don't you worry. He will "stay mit ihm," and when "he hit ihm," why, "just because."

CARL GUENTHER MAX LENTZ,
Professor of Germanic Languages

The only kick we will register against Max is his name. We think he does extremely well to succeed in life, handicapped by such an appendix as Guenther. German II class is wondering whether he smokes a different cigar each day or whether the same one lasts him a week. His looks belie him, for those who know him say that he is not really dangerous.

SENIOR

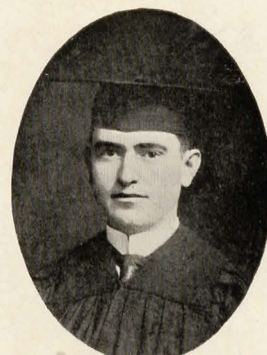

SENIORS

LOUIS E. WINFREY, B. A. Rudy

University editor of The University Weekly, '08.

"Prof." was the man that made the German language. He is not an entire success as a ladies' man, and does not care anyway. He is going to be a language Prof. and knows how to "flunk" one gracefully already. Motto: "Zum Tuyfel mit ihnen."

M. E. TUCKER, B. A. Fayetteville

Lieut. Company A.

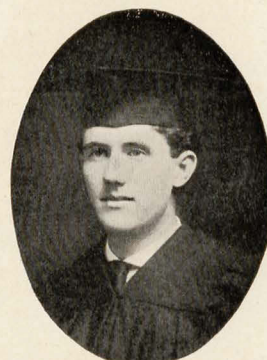

He is big and robust, "Hale fellow well met." Quite a musician and doesn't run around much; still he has a pretty good time.

W. C. MURPHY, B. A. Ft. Smith

Captain Company E, '09.

Murphy is an Irishman, in name only, for no Irishman ever combed his hair as does this man. He doesn't use a rat, either. Mr. Wallace Murphy is a good boy, if he is from Ft. Smith. He intends to be a preacher, or a lawyer, or something of the sort.

HANNAN H. HOLTZCLAW, B. Agr. Vineyard

Works in Commandant's office to escape drill.

Long and lean, played foot ball for the Seniors. Is the assistant engineer of the Military department and has made and unmade captains. He is an agricultural fiend, can tell a corn stalk from a cotton blossom from afar. P. S.—"Coldslaw" does not use curling irons.

ARTHUR C. DAVIS, B. M. E. Fayetteville

Captain Company B, '09.

Arthur is a good student; in fact, such a good student that he hasn't taken time to have his hair cut in the last ten years.

RUSSEL E. LAMBERT, B. A. Fayetteville

Leader of the band.

Leader of the German band and first aid to falling stars. He is the tallest Senior in captivity. He is fond of Dr. Brough, because of the latter's frequent reference to "Suncrowned men," carrier of the big stick, sometimes called a baton. He always endeavors to "beat the band."

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

PHIL MCNEMER, B. A. Little Rock

"Varsity base ball team.
"Mack" is a great big fellow who does our kicking when we play foot ball. He also knows how to play base ball, so the Seniors say.

MYRTIE FARISH, L. I., B. A. Morrilton

Secretary of the Junior class '07, '08.
Treasurer of Executive Board of Carnall Hall, '07.

"To learn when I was a Freshman, I would not, and then when I got old I could not."

GUY A. WATKINS, C. E. Fayetteville

Guy is a civil engineer. He has lately been studying on a plan by which he can make a submarine airship. It is useless to say that if he succeeds in this that his reputation as an inventor will be established.

FRANCES DOUGLAS Fayetteville

Vice President Mathesian, '08-'09. Vice President Y. W. C. A. '08-'09.

"I come not here to talk." She is very fond of books, although she dislikes to be called a "college grind," so much so I have been told that she has assumed a love affair. At least she has taken up the study of Bertha M. Clay. She goes about her work with a suspicious smile and is frequently heard singing, "Just a little rocking chair and you."

TRUMAN D. WILLIAMSON, E. E. Springdale

T. D. is a fiend after electrical apparatus. He has invented an electrical machine that will doubtless revolutionize the industrial world. "It is," he says, "self-constructing, self-repairing, self-oiling and a self-operating machine."

JEWELL MACHEN, B. A. Magnolia

Associate Editor of the CARDINAL, '08-'09.

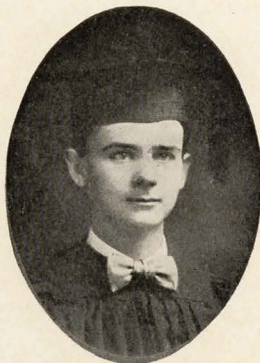

For some unaccountable reason no remarks were written about this noble Senior. If you want to know the reason ask her.

JOHN P. WOODS, B. A. Yellville

Joint winner of Oklahoma Debate.

"John Peter" is quite small, physically. He wears his hair trimmed poet's length, pretends to teach "A" Latin, is very fond of good clothes and precious jewels and stones. He is partial to "Rubies."

OLLIE GREATHOUSE, B. A. Johnson

"The quietest member of the class." Some say that she is thinking of taking the "Veil," others that she has had a great disappointment, but those who know her best say she is working out a plan to cheat Prof. Marinoni out of hours. The latest report is the reading course. She says it is a dead snap. We think she should be sentenced to read French every day from now until June.

JOHN W. REVEL, B. S. C. Augusta

Treasurer of Senior Class.

"Johnnus" is above all a society man, he is also a little musically inclined. His favorite song is "Mary had a little 'Johnnus,'" etc. Johnnus says the people of the University of Arkansas are too kiddish for him, he is going to the A. M. A.

MARIE KEENEY, B. A. Fayetteville

Secretary of the Senior Society, '08-'09.

"Study is a dreary thing: I would I knew the remedy."

Marie is simply crazy about wit in quotations. It is real interesting to see her slipping the "Life" and memorizing jokes. She is also frequently found solving the riddles in the almanacs. She sometimes springs them in class, thinking by this means to make a hit with the Profs. Another of Marie's hobbies is the discussion of marriage and divorce.

WILLIAM B. GIBSON, B. A. Barryville

Lieutenant.

Bert is the "Old He Raugue Hauseur." He is a great man for an argument and is the originator of the famous "Hill Hall Hindoo Hoodoo." He is also the chief manipulator of the said machine. He managed to go three months without getting caught by the Senior Committee. Such crafty managements merits especial mention.

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

ARA MITCHELL, B. A.....Fayetteville

"You can never hitch your wagon to a star if you keep your eyes lowered on your pony." A wee bit lassie, very "cute," though often accused of the sin of deception. She goes about with her coy smile and neat little curls trying to play "sweet sixteen," but you can't fool us. She also has the reputation of being a graceful rider: however, there is one peculiar thing about her—she always carries her pony in her pocket.

C. R. RHODES, B. E. E.....Osceola

Lieutenant. Quarterback "Dusty" has followed the '09 team to victory three times. He is little but loud.

NELL COLEMAN, L. I., B. A....Little Rock

'Varsity basket ball team, '07-'09. Secretary Senior Class, '08-'09.

You can never fail to recognize this dignified little Senior, known as the "Hermit" of the Dorm. It has long been a perplexing question to the matron as to how she will induce her to take enough exercise. She seems to take no notice of things about her. The matron has finally decided to place her under a very strong woman who will teach her how to play jokes, especially on the Juniors.

GARLAND HURT, B. A.....Fayetteville

Color Sergeant. "Miss Hurt" is an autocratic gentleman who presides over the University Weekly board. He is a leader in society and likes to be among beautiful women, but doesn't bring his heart when he comes to school.

BESSIE CARNALL, B. A.....Ft. Smith

Associate Editor CARDINAL, '07-'08. Class Prophetess, '08-'09.

Of the many promising characters at the 'Varsity this year, Miss Carnall is the most talented. Her voice is something to be wondered at. She usually chooses the midnight hour in which to practice her songs, in order that at that quiet time she may be able to distinguish the "mellow tones." In her zeal she forgot the comfort of her neighbors, and it became necessary for her to move to the first floor. She is now dying her hair in preparation for a trip to the Cincinnati Conservatory.

ALICE REED, B. A.....Fayetteville

"But there is more in me than thou understandest."

Alice's good humor has won her great love. She smiles so much that she has often been accused of flirting. She is very modest in her aspirations, not caring for woman's rights. She is also very domestic in her tastes, and is a firm believer in the old saying, "The shortest way to a man's heart is through his stomach."

BESS TRENT, B. A.....Fayetteville

Prophetess class, '07-'08.

Bess is Myrtle Miller's chum; they stick to each other like a sick kitten to a hot brick. You never see one without the other. They are very much alike.

MYRTLE MILLER, B. A.....Fayetteville

Historian of class, '05-'06.

"I care for nobody, no not I, if nobody cares for me."

Myrtle is the other part of the Miller-Trent chumship. They form a dead "crush"—a crush is a conjunction of two persons having a strong affinity for each other, and when they get tangled up in each other's arms, it is hard to tell which is the mushier, more impressionable substance.

DAN BLAIR, B. C. E.....Decatur

Captain Company A, '06-'07.

Short, sour and sassy, is an ardent lover of "Preps." Can be seen fondling them at all times.

R. C. GIBSON, B. A.....Berryville

Regimental Quartermaster Sergeant.

Gibson is a human question box. He can discuss any question relating to English, Economics, History, Latin or most anything else. His ideas are always guaranteed to be original. He is short and square, and wears a smile which is adjustable for the use of either old or young ladies. He doesn't mind talking to strangers.

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

C. C. CASH, B. A.....Texarkana

Lieut.-Col. at the Dormitory.
"What funny children some people raise."

The lion of the Weekly, his teachers see in him the elements of a Mark Twain. He has a very strong affinity for Freshman girls and so frequent are his visits to Carnall Hall that Mrs. Park has consulted the Dean about charging him rent for parlor space, and the wear and tear of the furniture. Under the magnanimous name of man-killer he even tried to get a room at Carnall Hall.

ROY B. LIESTER, B. A.....Fayetteville

Member of Y. M. C. A. Quartette.

He is a vocalist, organist, pianist, and a humorist, but not a socialist.

Fayetteville, Ark., Dec. 17th, 1908.—Mr. R. B. Liester, who so ably entertained an audience of twelve thousand in our town last night, is a student in the University of Arkansas. Mr. Liester's characterization of a Jew was especially apt. He was also quite funny in his "A Professor of Music." We are looking forward to a return engagement of Mr. Liester.—Fayetteville Daily.

Now I guess you know who Liester is.

MERRILL SNELL, B. C. E.....Fayetteville

An engineer who has finished his course in three years. This shows that he is one of the brightest members of his class. The latest problem he has been working on is that "it is possible to construct an elevated railroad under the Mississippi River."

CAMERON H. PULLEY, B. A....Fayetteville

A nice, quiet fellow who always wears Sunday-go-to-meetin' clothes. Jim is a real, true ladies' man sometimes, but he will go down in history as a man "too great to be president."

FRED A. TILLMAN, B. A.....Fayetteville

Fred is the last man in the University that we would have thought would have fallen in love, but Cupid's fiery darts have even reached his hard, hard heart. He is now a slave to a habit, love.

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

JOE W. RHODES, B. A. Osceola

Lieutenant and Adjutant.

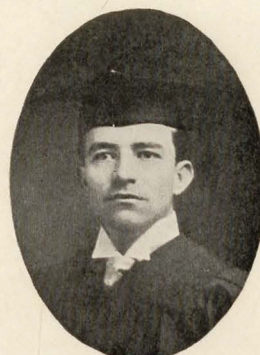

Joe is built square, all dimensions are rather short. He thinks he knows how to play foot ball, but he gets the game confused with prize fighting. He has a patented walk and is day keeper of the Commandant.

WILLIAM W. GRUBBS, B. A. Wilmer

Adjutant. President of Garland.

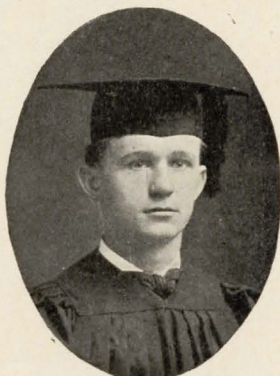

"Daddy" Grubbs is not old, he just appears to be. It is whispered that "Daddy" has been clearing a convenient place on top of his head preparatory to moving up his face. What the cause of his dissatisfaction is, is not known, for you can see that he is not bad looking.

C. N. WILSON, B. C. E. Cabot

Lieutenant, '09.

C. N. is another engineer who is supposed to graduate in three years, but it is doubtful whether he will make it or not. He is a little gaseous, in fact we are afraid to strike a match within his vicinity. Recently he has patented a new hot air furnace.

JOHN L. SHIPLEY, B. A. Booneville

Lieutenant.

John L. is not as fisty as the other John L. S. was. He is a quiet, good-natured and unassuming "cuss," who never says a bad word and very seldom any other kind. He is always springing surprises when one least expects them.

ESTES ALLEN, B. A. England

Some malicious Junior once hinted that he was not a Senior. He wishes us to make mention of the fact that he is a Senior.

JUSTIN R. TUCKER, B. Agr.....Fayetteville

He is a little man with keen, black eyes; loves to hunt quail on posted land. He toots a horn and can always be found on the band wagon. He is seldom seen after night fall.

ANNIE KETCHEM, L. I., B. A..Fayetteville

Graduate of Henderson College. "If you do not see her you will hear her." It is a serious thing for a girl to get afflicted with the "smiles." Annie has a bad case of them. As she grows older, she seems to realize her condition, and has been seen several times trying to close her mouth. It seems to be the reaction of a serious love affair, as she is often heard saying to herself, "Men are not always what they seem."

THEROM C. BLAIR, B. A.....Van Buren

President of Periclean, '08. T. C. is a blushing youth of sixteen years, or more. Blair is noted for his dainty mouth and his company (female?). His long suit is not going with the fair sex. He spurns them. In other words he is not for them. Blair is a big Y. W. C. A. man; perhaps this accounts for his disposition.

LUCIE NUNN, B. A.....Monticello

Vice President of Carnall Hall. "Loye maketh woman a sensitive thing." You all know Lucy, at least, you have heard of her. She talks in her sleep and often disturbs her roommate with indistinct murmurs about "preachers." Her most confidential friends say she is thinking seriously of changing her religion. She, of course, denies this in her waking hours, but prevarication covers a multitude of sins.

ROY CHAMBERLAIN, B. A.....Malvern

Lieutenant. Bashful, modest, very coy. Roy can't stay away from Mount Nord. He has an artistic temperament, reveling in Maupassant and "The Billboard." He has never loved—in vain.

DELBERT A. NORTON, B. A.....Little Rock

Business Manager CARDINAL, '08.

Senator wears a cap on his head and a twenty-five dollar meerscham in his mouth. He is a musician and when selling CARDINALS an orator. The Senator always sheds his top hair in the spring—watch for the sign.

GUY E. HIXSON, B. C. E.....Paris

Member of 'varsity foot ball team.

Guy is a foot ball enthusiast and a good player. He is one of these athletic fellows who likes to be idolized. But "Guy" will not let but one girl at a time worship at his shrine.

ELGIN A. WATERFIELD, B. A...Holdenville

"Waterbury" wears a pompadour. He is from Oklahoma and 'tis whispered that he is 4-17th Creek Indian. He debated his home university this year. Elgin loves the fruit (not the after effects) of the chafing dish. He knows where to go, too.

JOHN J. DULANEY, B. A.....Ben Lomond

John is a simple man. He is aspiring, studious and subtle. He is the incumbent of the President's chair of the Senior class. He knows how to make a slate. He was not in the Marathon race, but should have been. He believes in the divine right of kings and that "The state can do no wrong." Motto: "Pass the pie around."

WILLIAM E. NESBIT, B. A.....Fayetteville

If you see a nice looking boy, rather slender, walking around with his head in the air, observing the rabble through well cleaned glasses, that's "Bill" Nesbit.

RUBY GIBSON, B. A.....Pine Bluff

Society Editor of the Weekly. Class Poet.

"Love makes fools of us all, big and little." Her wit might be likened to that of Solomon. She is a great lover of nature and spends much of her time strolling about, observing the beauty and grandeur of the "Woods." Her musical talent is as great as that of Orpheus, for although she has not yet induced the mice and children to follow her, the forest seems to be walking in her foot steps.

RICHARD E. WOMACK, B. A.....Fayetteville

Major, 1st Battalion.

He is a worthy man if he is a major. He is the only officer of the day who has successfully worked a bluff. Womack is a connoisseur in good bed-time stories and lullaby songs. He is a grammarian of "purest ray serene."

FORREST ELLIS, B. A.....Fayetteville

"She seldom smiles." It is a puzzle to many of her classmates why she looks so sad. Some say she is growing a mouth and chin, or is becoming to be a lawyer, as she aspires to that profession. None of us doubt it, considering her love for Economics. Dewey is her favorite author, and she also expresses great admiration for Seligman.

MAX BRUCE OATES, B. Agr.....Fayetteville

President of Agr. Society.

Bruce is a foot ball enthusiast and an all around athlete. He was the Senior left half back. Oates is the southern salesman of the Century Books of Facts, and can sell to every unfortunate being on whom he sees fit to visit his wrath.

"Johnnie" is the business end of the Weekly. He says that the only thing that the Weekly needs to make it the best college paper in the South is an extra couple of sheets of advertising.

GEORGE J. MOORE, B. A. Bentonville

Associate Editor of Weekly.
"Now ladies and gentlemen, etc."
(See page —).

A. THETFORD, B. S. A. Knoxville

Although he is a Senior, it took many until after mid-term exams to find out that he was not a "Prep."

DAVID L. FORD, B. A. Charlestown

Editor-in-Chief of CARDINAL, '08.
"Dave" has been an orator, a footballist (indirectly), and was at one time an editor. He is now living down a past reputation. Remember him in your prayers.
Special to the Publishers: Through oversight there was no mention of the fact that he was Matron of the Dormitories for three months.

JAMES MEHAUFFY, B. A. Little Rock

JAMES B. BUNN, B. A. Hamburg

Y. M. C. A. Cabinet.

Bunn is something of a sport. He says he is cut out for a lawyer. Uses Foley's Face Food. When interviewed, Mr. Bunn said: "For twelve years my complexion was dark and muddy, but after using Foley's Face Cream for two days I could see a change and two boxes affected a complete cure. I always keep it on my dresser." For sale at all druggists; two sizes, 25 and 50 cents.

WILBUR S. BAILEY, B. E. E. Ft. Smith

Captain Company A, '08-'09.

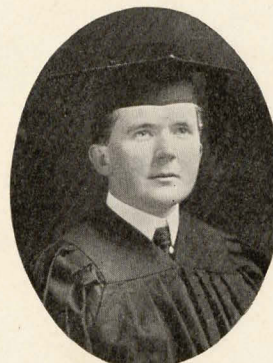

Bailey is a good captain, even though he didn't get to be major. He is a quiet, unobtrusive fellow and was never known to sport.

LEONARD L. WOOTTON, B. A. Mena

Secretary to President.

Leonard has a thirty second degree in society. He is professor of "Campusstry," and official distributor of campus tickets. "Sunshine" Wootton, as he is known by some, is the man who invented athletic gravy. He is the man behind the typewriter, the living, pulsating heart of the institution and the "Prep" Bureau of Information.

JOE C. ALLEN, B. A. Hatfield

Secretary and Treasurer of the Dormitory, '08-'09.

"Joe" represents the effects of association. He is naturally a very religious sort of fellow and is president of the Y. M. C. A., but has never broken himself of the room stacking habit. He likes all the girls, but loves Nunn.

FRANK C. HAWKINS, B. A. Rogers

Frank says that foot ball is too strenuous. However, he believes in Roosevelt's other theories. He loves Latin, Greek, Economics, Athletic Gravy, and Miss ——. He is the author of "How to Live Easy."

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

ELIZABETH NICHOLS, B. A. Muskogee

Associate Editor of Weekly

"I am satisfied with myself." A demure little maid, whose egotism and self-righteousness has deceived many. A friend becoming curious about her many prayers, found her one evening kneeling before her mirror admiring her likeness through a pair of opera glasses, earnestly repeating the prayer, "I thank thee that I am not as other girls are."

LEXIE BELL, B. A. Benton

President of Y. W. C. A., '07-'08.
Vice President of L. I. Alumni Association.

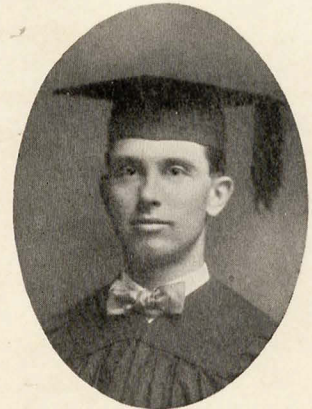

"Look unto me." Too august to be understood. Some of the under classmen who have not learned better, venture the opinion that she has a history. One little slanderer even suggested that she had lost a lover in the Civil War. Such thoughts wound us.

WILLIAM J. JERNIGEN, B. A. . . . Charlotte

Editor-in-Chief of the University Weekly.

"Bill" is tall, a brunette with eyebrows highly elevated and pursed lips. He wears a white hat in the summer-time and dark trousers in the winter. He is the editor of the "Weakley," but can't help it. Bill has sleigh bells for eyes.

AILEEN SPENCER, L. I., B. A. . . . Monticello

Member of Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '07-'08.

"True, she is a fisher, but she angles for hearts."

How can a woman be so cruel as to break the heart of a poor, innocent man? Four, I have been told, lie prostrate at her feet. The mere glance of her eye is laden with Cupid's darts. Just the other day a down-town druggist was overheard to say that within the past week he had sold four bottles of deadly poison on trial, some of which were mailed to other points. 'Tis a secret, mind you, but I accidentally heard that Miss Spencer has received a letter bordered in black and containing the threatening words, "Every dog has his day."

HOWELL L. WESTBROOK, B. A. . . . Pine Bluff

A small, nice looking boy who lives on "Lovers Lane." "Toady" doesn't believe in carrying too much work. "Alexander the Great" died at the age of 33 from overwork," he says. "Toady" is one of the most popular young men in school.

My Curl-ly-haired friend, Farmer Miller, visited me in December. He is a good farmer living in Minnesota and Rye is his main crop. He planted his Rye last year in a marshy flat of ground, which he called (Nei)mire, and he raised an exceptionally good crop despite the fact that the Martin-s eat a good deal. He had got a good Price for his grain and r-Eason-ed that he could buy More-land or take a vacation. He chose the latter and came to see me at the University. My friend Was-son of the Young-gest son of Joe Miller of Arkansas.

I took my friend to the University Monday morning and introduced him to President Tillman. We went into the Commandant's office and saw the d-Arn-old stick book. Then we crossed the Hall. Here we met a lady, who asked us to Joiner and go up on top of the tower. My friend Blair-ed his eyes, wondering at the distance that he could see. The flag was hanging at half-Mast-in in respect to a friend of the University who had died. We came down by the gymnasium and inspected the equipment. There were a few Goodbar-s and a great many bars that were so small that they might be designated as Barrets. The physical director told us that some one had a Patton-t on the Goodbar-s, and that they had to secure them at any Price. While we were in here a boy fell from one of the Wood-en bars and cut a gash in his hand. It Bledsoe that he took a "Bandy"-age from a Coyle in his pocket and tied it up. This proved to be a good remedy to Freeman from loss of blood. We went back to the dormitory for dinner and took a seat at the Hux-table. When asked to have some coffee he said sure, Phillip my cup from the Phil-pot.

We had Rye, (Gra)ham and (Gr)eggs for dinner. A friend of mine Knox a lot on the dormitory grub but there are many "cants" (Kantz) in life and you can't feed three hundred boys cheaply on good food. I notice that they Cook with Cole. One thing I notice is that dormitory doors Creekmore than any I had ever seen. As we came out from the dining Hall, Mr. Miller slipped on the steps and hurt his Shinn, but he was not hurt bad enough to keep him from playing Gough that afternoon. I left my Hatly-ing on the floor in the dining Hall and we had to go back and get it. Mr. Miller left me that afternoon, saying that he had had a very pleasant visit.

JUNIORS

ARNOLD, J. G., Texas Debate.....B. A.

The Judge is an orator of some note, especially among the "Preps." Last year on "Prep Day" he held the "Preps" spellbound at least fifteen minutes. He says that he is going west and grow up with his party (Republican).

BOLES, C. H.....B. C. E.

We don't know as much about Boles as we would like to know. They say, though, that he has acquired so many good habits since he came to college that he now assumes the dignified air of a parson.

BARRET, A. J.....B. A.

Gentlemen, he is perfectly harmless, even the ladies fondle him. He says that he inherited his manly stride from an ancestor who saw the six league boots.

GRAHAM, BESS.....B. A.

"It is much easier to be critical than comical."

BINKLEY, R. J.....B. A.

We really haven't time to fool with this fellow. But if you are especially interested in him call around to our office and we will talk the matter over with you.

BLAKLEY, G. T.....B. A.

A Solomon in the selection of a school. This is "Blake's" first year with us, so in order to make his stay here as pleasant as possible, we positively refuse to roast him. He is also to be congratulated in his selection of a class.

KUNTS, GLADYSB. A.

"A hat, a hat, my kingdom for a little Junior hat."

BADENELLI, E. B., Sub on the foot ball team.....B. A.

"Bandy" is a good, easy fellow, as good fellows go. He made sub on the 'varsity foot ball team, but yet we can't conceive of him ever heading a riot.

BARTON, D. R., member of Y. M. C. A. Quartet.....B. A.

Barton is the Y. M. C. A. quartet base (bass) fool. His Y. M. C. A. duties are so urgent that he sometimes fails to meet his classes. In fact he is making quite a reputation as a cutter.

WHITE, PEARL.....B. A.

"If she will, she will; you many depend on it, and if she won't, she won't."

BLAIR, S. T.....B. C. E.

Blair would make a good minister in some little town where they are not especially choicy. But Blair is a good fellow, and can look just as dignified as any of the C. E. bunch.

T H E N A U G H T - N I N E C A R D I N A L

CREEKMORE, MARGARET, assistant artist to the CARDINAL.....B. A.

"Slow, but sure of speech."

BLAIR, J. H., Lieut.....B. C. E

Shorty is strictly a military man. He is authority (in his own mind) on military tactics and civil engineering. Out among the C. E. bunch the men will have to right dress to the orders of the Major General of Shorty's dreams.

McGUIRE, NELLB. A.

"I live because I must, I die because it is my destiny."

ZIEGLER, MAY, Class Treasurer.....B. A.

"For she was grounded in astronomy."

CAMPBELL, S. J.....B. A.

He is our "baby" Junior. Despite his age, he hath worn a wise look ever since he came onto the campus. But don't get disgusted if he talks a little on the side for Taft.

COLE, K. E., sub on 'varsity base ball team; half back on class team.....B. E. E.

"Stub" is a wonder. It is a sight how much ginger, salt and snap can be put up in so small a package. "Stub" played a star part last year in the "Prep" fracas.

CONNER, VERNA.....B. A.

"My pride started out on the highest speed and got towed home."

COYLE, N.....B. A.

Really his sojourn here has been so short that we do not feel like passing our judgment upon him.

CROOK, C. B.....B. M. E.

Crook belongs to the band gang, as his name would indicate. He was born with a pitch pipe in one hand and a music roll in the other, and he has been indulging in his musical dreams ever since.

HATLEY, Viola.....B. A.

"I always feel when the song is done, no other is soft in the rithm,
I always feel when left by one, that all men else go with him."

Davis is a Knot on the end. Nobody knows what Davis intends to be. He does not seem to be studying for anything.

DICKINSON, B. F.....B. M. E.

This is another shy rat. Really we must confess that he has got us skinned and we must hurry on.

DELONGY, H. C.....B. C. E.

We don't hope to make this a complete sketch of this sport. Yes a sport, but not a sparker. That is too common place. If you will excuse the use of technical terms, he is a dramatic spooner.

EASON, H. E., Lieut.....B. C. E.

He is a perfectly lovely little lad. A Co-ed chaser, did you say? No, nothing to it, Eason is a confirmed woman-hater. Too bad.

MORGAN, ELMA.....B. A.

"Of Christ and His apostles twelve she talked,
But first she followed it herself."

FERGUSON, O. J., reporter to Weekly.....B. A.

Ferguson is a loyal supporter of the G. O. P. He is ever at his best when defending the principles of his party. But "Ferg" is not a radical and is always open to reason, if you have anything to say—in his favor.

FREEMAN, J. D., Class Poet.....B. A.

He is rather handy with a hammer. We are waiting in suspense his inspection of the CARDINAL. We should hate for it to have anything in it of which John disapproved.

FREEMAN, T. B., Business Manager of CARDINAL.....B. A.

The hugest joke of the season is a man in love and thinks nobody knows it.

CARTER, NAMA.....B. A.

"Now as a child, I spake as a child, I thought as a child, I understood as a child, but that now, I am a woman, I retain my childish ways."

GARDNER, P. B., President of The Lee.....B. A.

A frequent worshiper at the shrine of Carnall Hall.

GEORGE, F. J., Associate Editor of the CARDINAL.....B. A.

Finis studies hard and does not spend any time sporting. He has called on only one lady during the whole year, and as she was not at home he has refused to make another venture into the social world.

McGUIRE, AUDIE.....B. A.

"Of remedies for love she knows full well,
And she has applied them too oft to tell."

GEORGE, I. L.....B. A.

To say he is a combination of beauty, wit and wisdom is misleading. He transcends the power of our limited vocabulary to portray. But it is a "cinch" he thrills the very mocking bird itself with his melodious strains of "vocal music and singing."

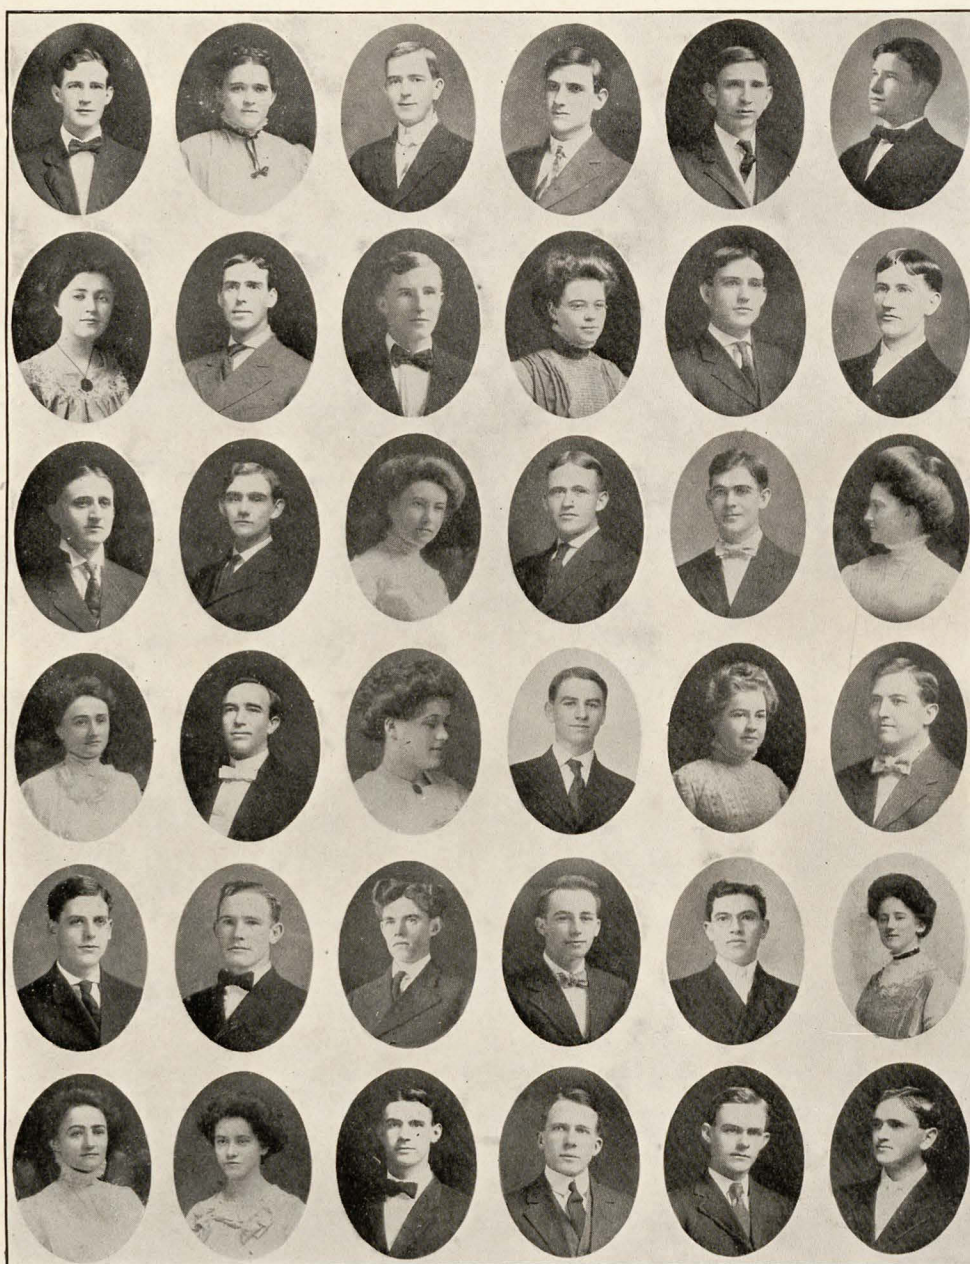

GOODBAR, J. E., Assistant Business Manager of Weekly.....B. A.

Joe is taking his major under "Daddy" Droke. That is enough to give him a passport into our sympathy. Joe thinks that the originator of that "Prep" day last year ought to be court martialled and shot.

MASTIN, ELEANOR.....B. A.

"She is contented. Her ambition has gone to seed."

The way this lad works Prof. Lentz would do credit to an experienced diplomat. That's all right, old boy, just go ahead, if your name does not keep you back, you will make your mark yet.

TIDBALL, SUE.....B. A.

"Possession is nine points of the law, self-possession is the tenth."

BLEDSON, J. L.....B. A.

A man is in a good state about whom nothing bad at all can be said. He didn't write this himself, I did.

GOULD, R. W.....B. A.

This young sport is a near relation of Jay Gould, the late multimillionaire. He has his famous namesake skinned a country block when it comes to smelling out a hard piece of work.

GRAHAM, S. B., member of Junior foot ball team.....B. E. E.

It has never struck us that Graham would turn the world over. He is just a simple, rustic, unassuming, unnoticed, unpolished, unobtrusive, undignified young gentleman.

GOUGH, I.....B. Mi. E.

A young lady was heard to say that Mr. Gough was the handsomest man in school. That is a bad enough reputation for any one.

HUXTABLE, W. G., Assistant Business Manager CARDINAL.....B. C. E.

"Billy" is all right, he "hain't got nuffing 'gaint nobody." He "was once a 'Prep' himself and he can appreciate a 'Prep' feelings on certain points.

ISOM, J. R.....B. A.

Isom also belongs to the band gang. He has written some excellent music which he intends to play at the next concert, with the rest of the band, to barricade the doors and keep the audience pacified.

JENNINGS, J. L.....B. A.

This fellow is indeed very ingenious. They say that he has invented a scheme by which you can pass Math. II to "Daddy" Droke without cramming.

Keck is called a "scrub." But he is the stuff the regulars are made of. Keck says he had rather face the whole 'varsity eleven than one member of the fair sex.

KOSER, W. A., Lieut.....B. E. E.

Koser has never been caught in the act of studying. He is never happier than when he has his pipe in his mouth, his legs propped up on the table and singing, "Won't you be sweet to me, honey."

WOOD CORINNA.....B. A.

"The fashion wears out more apparel than the men."

LUEKER, T. F.....B. A.

Lueker is part German and part (k)not. He crams for the love of cramming. In Lueker we behold what a university can not do for a man in the short space of three years.

MARTIN, H. B.....B. A.

Martin belongs to the "cinch" bunch, and can smell a streak of easy work a half mile.

MILLER, GRADY, captain '09 foot ball team.....B. A.

We positively refuse to roast our little second baseman. He has played consistent ball for two seasons and this year is captain of the team. Grady still wears the same size hat he did before he had this honor thrust upon him.

TRIMBLE, NELL.....B. A.

"I have neither words, nor action, nor utterance, nor the power of speech to stir men's blood: I only speak right on."

DAVIS, OPAL.....B. A.

Opals are considered to be unlucky, but there are some who are willing to take the chances.

DAVIS, OLGA.....B. A.

"Those who in quarrels interpose,
Must often wipe a bloody nose."

MITCHELL, SOLON B.....B. S.

What Mitchell don't know about Chemistry has never been printed. He is so stuck on the Chem. habit that he is inclined to put into practice every idea that comes into his head. They even say that he is contemplating an experiment of the marriage state, but the Co-eds vehemently denounce this idea.

MOON, V. T., CARDINAL Artist.....B. C. E.

Appearances are deceitful, but never more so than in the case of "Shorty." More than once the Co-eds have mistaken him for the Commandant, but horror of horrors, when "Shorty" removes his glasses and they get a glimpse of the real "Shorty" behind them.

MORELAND, C. W.....B. E. E.

You will have to wait a minute, until we remove our gloves, before we can unravel this bundle of college spirit. It is put up in a small package, but quality makes up for quantity.

BEANE, ADA.....B. A.

In dignity she is second only to Miss Holcombe.

MUSTAIN, A. B.....B. A.

This man is not the cruel "grinder" who eats Latin alive. When you get next to him he is real tender-hearted. His habitual expression is the result of his many years spent as a country school teacher. Having a dignified personal expression he has often been taken for one of the faculty chaps.

MORGAN, W. G.....B. C. E.

Here we have a man who never hurried, never worried, never talked too much. He believes in making haste slowly and taking lots of time before and after all such painful operations.

DEWITT, FRANCIS.....B. A

"Whene'er offended at some unlucky time,
She slides into verse and hitches into rhyme."

McCOLLOUGH, EDGAR.....B. A.

This chap stands for Democracy or bust. Bryan's defeat was more than he could stand, consequently he was ill for three weeks. (So reported in Econ. 8).

McANDREWS, J. M.....B. C. E.

"Mac" has the reputation of a "grinder." "Mac" is seldom heard to talk except in the class room, and there his voice has the clear ring of a "grinder" and carries with it conviction and 90 per cent.

McCLELLAN, V. S.....B. S.

McClellan is a rather quiet chap, and we know very little about him. He is from Hendricks. He seldom mentions the name of a Co-ed, unless it is absolutely necessary, and then he blushes and begs pardon for discussing such an unpleasant subject.

SUTTON, BULAH.....B. A.

"Oh, the light that lies in her eyes."

NEIMEYER, F. W.....B. S.

He is a sport of the first magnitude, and of course has his major to Dr. Brough.

LAMBERTON, ANNIE.....B. A.

"Give me the lowest place, or if for me
That lowest place is too high, make me more low
Where I may sit and see my God, and love Him so."

KNOX, VIRGINIA.....B. A.

"I think little,
I say little,
I do little."

An engineering enthusiast. He is engaged in perfecting a scheme whereby he can connect the earth and Mars by rail. If his plan materializes, branch lines will extend to the other planets.

Out of respect for the weak and lowly, the lame and the halt, the widows and orphans, I think we shall pass this man up. But Rye isn't much for good looks. To hear Rye talk you would think he had broken all the hearts in Polk County, "by gosh."

The meek and lowly Southmayd is the star fool of the Glee Club. Whenever he makes a semi-monthly visit to Econ. 8, the Dr. shakes hands with him, tells him the subject under consideration, gives him E for his presence in class, and then Laban is not seen again for the next two weeks.

A JUNIOR'S DREAM

A dreamer sat alone one night
In a city far away.
He dreamed of youth and pleasures spent,
In the dear old U. of A.

He'd gone from out those classic walls
In the year of 1910.
His thoughts went back to those happy days,
And his heart was gay again.

He thought of the games the class had lost
And the games that they did win.
He thought of the happy hours he'd spent,
With the class of 1910.

"But where are the Juniors now?" he asks,
Of the dream God old and gray.
"What has become of those girls and boys,
Since they left the U. of A?"

Then came the dreamland elves, so small,
And took him in their flight.
They carried him both here and there,
And showed him many a sight.

In Little Rock an office was
Of a large and prosperous "biz,"
The owner, knew he at a glance,
As an old classmate of his.

To other places then they went,
And other faces saw,
In schools, in homes, in factories,
All over Arkansas.

Then from the state they went anon,
And time and time again,
He found among the busy folk,
The boys and girls of '10.

At last he thought he'd seen them all
But, no, there's others still.
Across the ocean, there are some,
Obeying the Master's will.

In China a lady, whom all love,
Has for Him toiled and worked,
And though her trials have been hard,
She ne'er her duty shirked.

There are others, too, in Africa,
And some are in Japan.
And India claims from the great class
A consecrated man.

To South America have gone,
Some Jolly engineers,
Who in that land so rich and new,
Are working without peers.

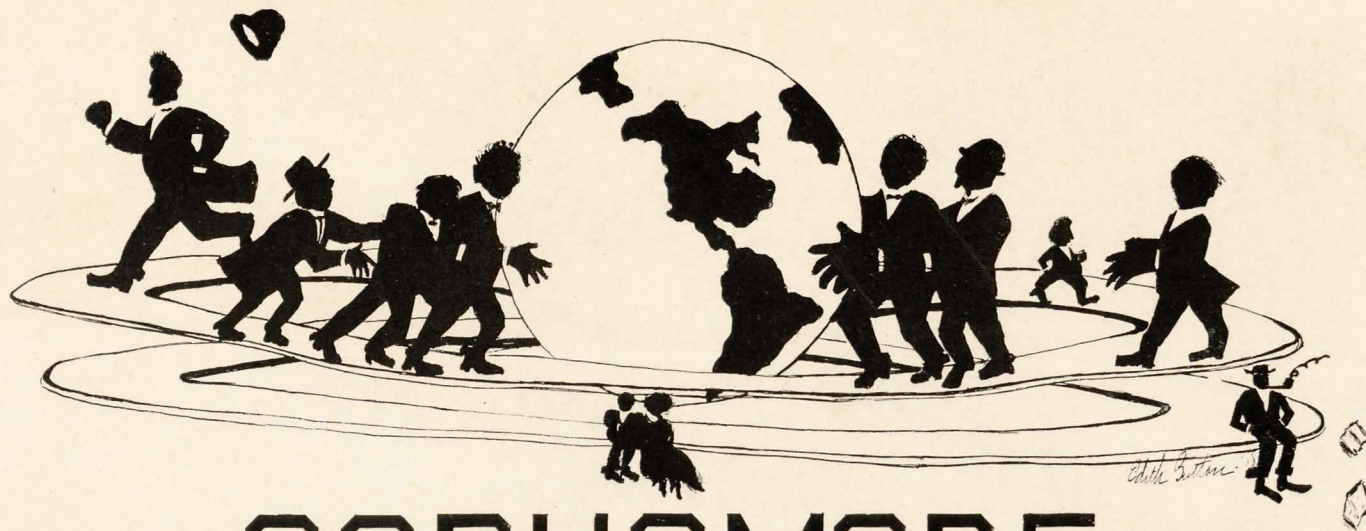

Their training in the U. of A.
Has made them fit to win,
And now they thank the fates that they
Were of the class of '10.

The Panama Canal is done,
Who finished that great task?
'Twas a C. E. from our bunch
Why such a question ask?

Then suddenly the elves brought
The dreamer back to land.
He woke and what was that he held
So tightlv in his hand?

'Twas just a picture old and torn,
And worn down very thin,
A group of boys and girls who made
The Class of 1910.

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF '11

As a rule when a class history is about to be written, the Sacred Muse of History has occasion to be elsewhere than in her accustomed place, and thus many heroic actions that would else have moved the credulity and excited the astonishment of the civilized world, are forever lost from her sacred pages. Likewise, in her absence her worthy devotee dips his pen into the fanciful liquid of imagination and judiciously proceeds to "give to airy nothingness a local habitation and a name."

But we have changed all this. The class of 1911 is not composed of those who, "having eyes, see not." They are willing to let facts plead their cause instead of leaving it in the hands of dissimulating fancies. Listen to their story—Bound for Seniorville.

In 1907 a train pulled by engine No. 37 set out from Freshville, on the Ark. E. S. J. & S. R. R. Slowly the great engine puffed, and the drivers slipped on the rails many times, but by continually steaming up and sanding the track, she soon had the long train in motion. Soon the passengers chanced to observe a grizzly mountain looming up in the distance. A marmur of dismay was heard when the dreadful name of Math. I mountain was called out by the train man. The pass by this mountain was guarded by a giant, who stroked his beard and smiled grimly as the train drew up. He was found to be a very friendly giant, and many were the wise suggestions which he gave for the management of the train. Beyond Math. I mountain lies the valley of Ec. Through this beautiful valley we glided, while we listened to the sounds of sweet music. But we soon awoke to a stern reality, for we were told that the Latine Hills were not far away. They were very rough and so steep that the passengers were forced to alight from the train and make their way as best they could by means of sure-footed animals, which they found grazing near the base of the hills.

Soon we had passed these hills and alighted from our faithful "ponies." Here we met a band of Seniors, who told us wonderful stories of Seniorville, a land of joy and music and peace. Our conductor now told us that we could have a stop-over of three months. We found various ways of passing this time, some in studying good books, and still others in imparting the knowledge to others, which they had gained on their journey to Soph City. Suddenly as the third month was drawing to a close, came the sharp and imperative summons, "Quick, arise, time has rolled around and the trip to Seniorville must be continued."

Many of our valiant band were missing when the train rumbled up, but we were reinforced by many new members, and with sighs and occasional smiles we again set forth on our journey.

After many adventures, quite similar to those experienced before our stop-over, we at last, in a great cloud of glory, drew up to the station on Junior Heights and here, crowned with honor, we are now resting securely. From this lofty height we look outward and upward, where we see the blue mountains of Seniorville and Success standing out clearer and fairer than ever before, and with our eyes fixed on that goal we shall pass onward until it is attained and we are crowned with laurels which grow on its loftiest peak.

SOPHOMORE POEM

When we were verdant Freshmen,
The world seemed very small,
But now since we are Sophomores
We can't see the end at all.

When we were verdant Freshmen,
The Soph seemed far above,
But now since we are Sophomores
The same is the class we love.

Now that we're jolly Sophomores,
We have wiser grown,
And now the name of Junior
Is the one we wish to own.

Now when we reach that giddy height,
I know that we shall be
The same old plucky, honest class,
That Sophomores used to be.

But at last upon reaching
The goal we have striven for,
We'll ne'er forget the steps we took
To bring us up thus far.

Now when this life is o'er
And by chance you get to heaven,
Just look around and you are sure to find
The dear old Class of '11.

FRESHMAN.

THE FRESHMEN

Freshmen are we of talents rare,
And knowledge great beyond compare.
If others do not see it so
It is because they do not know.

Some of our girls are neat and trim,
While others like to flirt with "him."
Some of them burn the midnight oil,
While others know not how to toil.

And some of them grow pale with fright,
When they are asked a theme to write,
But when a swell sport passes by
He's won by just a glance.

Each boy is like a bumble bee,*
His whiskers young are great to see.
His ever changing voice abounds
In lovely concord of sweet sound.

Our president is great, you see,
The shepherd of our flock is he.
But, though he watches night and day,
He does not keep the "wolf" away.

When we a class fool went to find,
In this respect we fell behind.
We looked about us, but in vain,
We one and all had too much brain.

Ye, upperclassmen, here and now,
Pause, and place laurels on our brows.
Till 1912 you need not wait,
Already we are counted great.

e. g., "Oscar" Starkey.

THE FRESHMEN OF 1909

Be it known to all men by these presents that we, the Freshman Class of 1909, differ from all preceding Freshman Classes.

Three hundred strong, we come from all parts of the grand old state of Arkansas, every one of us full of enthusiasm. We do not have to go through the trials and tribulations usually gone through by Freshmen during matriculation and classification; no anxious days and sleepless nights were for us because we were just entering college. We knew that we had unusual ability and that the Profs. would not be long in finding it out. No great boasts were made. We only promised to make things move and make them move with a rush.

The higher classmen, especially the Sophomores, whose backs still leave a green tint wherever they touch, were inclined to deride and belittle us on account of what they called our self conceit.

However, they soon found, very much to the detriment of their own high opinion of themselves, that what boasting we were doing was not all bragging, and that instead of sinking to the lowest depths of college life and being lost from sight in the realms of oblivion, we became famous for our knowledge and prowess, even before the mid-term exams. This is proved beyond a shadow of a doubt by the results of the Freshmen-Sophomore foot ball game. The two months just preceding the game were characterized by the number and boastfulness of the utterances, which continually fell from the lips of the self-conceited Sophs and by the calm and unassuming air and unboastful conversation of the confident Freshmen. As the day for the game approached the claims made by the Sophomores grew and grew more extravagant. Their principal regret was that they were compelled to waste some of their time and strength on such little and insignificant creatures as Freshmen.

The game is at hand. The "Sophs" marched out, confidently expecting to wreak summary vengeance upon the verdant Freshmen, who are already on the field calmly awaiting the arrival of the enemy. Our men were determined to do or die, and after an hour's battling they march away in triumph, leaving behind them a bruised and battered foe. And meanwhile the boastful "Sophs" creep away to hide themselves and to endure as best they can the disgrace of having gone down in defeat at the hands of the much despised Freshmen.

Not only are we powerful on the athletic field, but in the literary world we have made ourselves felt. Our bosoms swell with just pride as we think of our accomplishments in the field of learning. We have orators who could make Demosthenes hang his head in shame and sneak off to the sea shore to begin anew his attempt to learn the art of speaking. Our debators rival such men as Lincoln and Webster, so perfect are they in that art. The speeches which we have had, from time to time, in our class elections would do credit to a Bryan or a Taft, so well were they prepared and delivered.

A few of the good qualities of our Freshmen boys have been set forth, but so far our girls have not been mentioned. It would be an unpardonable sin to close this description of our noble class without saying a few things about our sister classmates. Of course when girls are mentioned, the first question asked is, "Are they pretty?" Of course the Freshmen girls are pretty, yea, they are more than pretty, they are very pretty. We may go still further and say that they are unapproachably beautiful and still remain in the bounds of truth. This beauty is of a type rare and never to be forgotten, which needs but to be seen in order to be admired. To behold a Freshman is to love her. Nor does their beauty make them vain, but only adds to their goodness and increases their loveliness.

"Their graceful ease, their sweetness vo'd of pride,
Would hide their faults, had they but faults to hide."

The songs which they sing rival in sweetness those of the nightingales, and the tunes, which in some mysterious way they beat out of the piano almost cause the mountains to break forth in singing. For fear we may cause some of our friends to doubt the truthfulness of our statements, we will say no more concerning our useful accomplishments.

Some of the higher classmen will be inclined to sneer at us and designate us as "verdant Freshmen," and accuse us of being "light in the upper story," but what do we care for that.

The Freshmen of to-day are a different class of people from what they were two or three years ago when you were Freshmen.

"There's not one lesson e'er forgotten,
There's not one dunce among the lot."

A LOYAL FRESHMAN.

SUB-FRESHMAN CLASS, '08-'09

SUB-FRESHMAN TRIBUTE

Of a class like ours,
 What can I sing?
 Words as sweet as flowers
 Ne'er to you could bring
 The story of the glory of a class like ours.

With true hearts and glad hearts,
 We all began our work,
 Resolved though pleasure try her arts,
 That we would never shirk;
 Though often she might tempt us and we might half-way fail,
 She should find that all her efforts had been to no avail.
 For the wish to do the transient thing that pleasure prompts us, cowers
 Before the will to keep the faith of a glorious class like ours.

Together we have worked and played for days throughout the year,
 And memories of failures made or triumphs high and clear
 Bring sometimes to our lips a smile, or to our eyes a tear.
 But as the sunshine and the joy we've gathered in this year
 Outweigh the sorrow, so our smile outweighs the falling tear:
 And feeling this we know, though hard, no trial overpowers
 The glory great of being one in as brave a class as ours.

And when at last we reach the goal and look out o'er earth's maze,
 The class of nineteen-thirteen will be first to meet our gaze;
 Brave men and noble women from out its number move,
 And help to make the world a place of purity and love;
 And since all crowned with success each member lofty towers,
 The glory we can ne'er forget, of that dear old class of ours.

SENIORS

THOMAS C. WATSON.....Mt. Vernon

Class President.

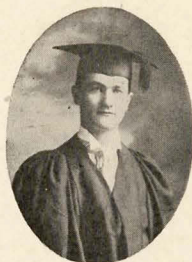

Although he hails from the hill of Faulkner County, suffering many hardships in his many years of practice, he has at last come for his diploma. Tom is a merry youth of generous width and meagre height. He is sure to find the ladder of Fame, to which he has aspired. Ex-Interne Pulaski County Hospital; at present Interne City Hospital.

EMMETT A. PICKENS.....Pea Ridge

Class Vice President.

One of the good fellows of the class. He has entered heart and soul into his profession, and when not at school he can be found at home with his beloved better "nine-tenths."

BERT L. WARE.....Greenwood

Secretary and Treasurer of class.

His name fits well. Even after spending four years in medical college, two of which he has served as Interne in City Hospital, he is still not much the worse of "wear." We predict him a bright future. Interne City Hospital since Jan. 1, '08.

ROBERT C. ALLEN.....Argenta

Four years in medical college has not changed his determination to be a doctor, and yet, he doesn't look it.

THOMAS L. BRAY.....Duffie

Bray has had three ambitions: to get through school, then get married, and beat the world out of a living afterwards.

IDUS L. BRADLEY.....Dover

I. L. is what might be called neutral, or slightly alkaline in reaction. His home is at Dover, and the fact that he is now a partner of Dr. Young, is evidence of his ability.

RALPH F. BIZANZ.....Dubuque, Iowa

Though he has been with us this last year, R. F. has proven to be well primed. He came charged with a store of excellent knowledge and is on his way to success, for he is sincere, industrious, and a gentleman.

JAS. A. DILLARD.....Melbourne

Dillard is one of the quiet men of the class, but does a lot of good hard studying. Contrary to his impression he is not married and asserts emphatically that his henpecked look is not due to any matrimonial affairs past or future.

CHARLES F. GEORGE.....Brunley, Mo.

Since entering the U. of A. as a Freshman, he has by his own efforts risen in the world, till to-day he bears lightly the dignity of a Senior. Contrary to the general belief, he is not married. He has been a good student, and is sure to make a record after he leaves school.

WILLIAM B. LAMB.....Delight

Gave up teaching for the pill-bag. Well known in Pike County as a teacher and has also won honors at college as a foot ball star. Lamb has a bright future.

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

ARTHUR D. LONG.....Oakland, La.

He has been neither good nor discreet, yet we have nothing upon which to roast him.

MISS WINONA E. LONG.....Mena

Class Poetess.

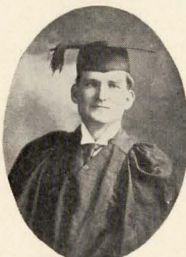

Her dignity and refinement accounts in a measure for her popularity. The only girl in the class. She is a student of exceptional ability. A specialist on the eye.

CHARLES S. MEANS.....Charleston

Class Historian.

"A man with a smile." A man also of real wit, and genial good nature. A hard student—studies on Sundays—but is then taking a side degree in the "mute" language. He has said, "If I had as good a teacher in medicine I might like it better."

ARDEN T. MCKINNEY.....Little Rock

A firm believer in the idea that it is never too late to get an education. Mac brought his family four ago to Little Rock, where he entered the U. of A. Has proven a splendid student—at times giving information that surprised even the professors in his class.

GLEN M. ROBINSON.....Eldorado

The Beau Brummel—and by all odds the only sport in class. When he dons his "gala rags" he looks like the hind end of bad luck. We hope that Rob will do well, for he is good-hearted, a deep student with all the signs and symptoms of chronic, malignant love.

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

THOMAS C. RIZER.....Southwest City, Mo.

Prior to his entering the U. of A. he was for three years in the hospital corps of the army, spending the most of the time in the Philippine Islands, and making a few trips to France. With the nerve and brass that he has, and the learning that he has acquired, we predict him a bright future.

DOCK W. SHAMBLIN.....Reng, Okla

An honest, timid, bashful, clean cut, good fellow, deserving all he has ever received.

WILLIAM S. SIMPSON.....Franklins

Quiet, speaks only when necessary. He says, "Still water runs deep." "He is there."

HENRY F. THOMPSON.....Eldorado

A very bright lad when awake, but he will sleep during lectures. His motto:

Early to bed, early to rise,
Does very well for preachers and "guys;"
But it makes a man miss all his fun till he dies,
And joins the "stiffs" up in the skies.

CORRY A. WASSELL.....

Famous for his "butting in." Despite the fact he hails from the salt district, he has been wondrously fresh all through his college career.

BURTON A. WASSON.....Dodson, La.

He comes to us from Louisiana. After spending his other three years at Nashville, he decided to come to the U. of A. for his diploma and fill its halls with his wonderful "hot air," which is almost as fierce as the last volcano that erupted.

WOOD S. WOOLFORD, JR.....Kingsland

Class Prophet.
"Woody," with his nineteen years, is the youngest and smallest of the class of '09, but by no means the weakest. His pleasant smiles and beautiful complexion are envied by all the fair sex who know him. Ex-Interne City Hospital.

JAMES E. YARBROUGH.....Amity

By dropping out a few years, James has managed to be one of the class of '09. He is quite prominent in class affairs; although from Pike County, he has demonstrated the fact by actual experience that he will make good.

LUTHER L. WHITE.....Jebb

Known as "Bob White." Bob started in to graduate in the fall of 1903, but waited till now to find a class to graduate with that exactly suited him. The best dancer in school, and noted as well for his wit and humor, which is clearly shown between classes.

HISTORY

The historian writing the history of his class has a grievous and very much to be comiserated task, for it falls to his lot to be the sad recorder of the many who began and the few who finish, nor can he recall the blissful past without a melancholy sigh that it is gone forever.

Ours is a cosmopolitan class in that it is composed of representatives from many schools of medicine and the welding together of these various units into the class of '09 was left for our own Alma Mater.

The fall of 1905 found this class composed of fifty-six members. Each succeeding year has been a winnowing of the wheat from the chaff. But twenty-four of the original fifty-six remain to-day. It has been a survival of the fittest.

We are about to enter the great army of physicians, the modern alchemists, still groping for the philosopher's stone, but yet a different stone, not one changing the baser metals into gold, but a cure for every disease, the true philosopher's stone. May each of us contribute his mite towards revealing these great secrets, many of which science has not yet discovered.

We have hoped, feared, and worked together, and assuming no superiority except such as is substantiated by fact, we may say we are the same to-day; let future classes do better.

Young Pillman has his shingle out,
Proclaiming him M. D.,
But from A. M. to late P. M.,
His office is M. T.

W. S. WOOLFORD.

PROPHECY

NOTE.—According to one of the Profs., two members of this class are destined to become famous. Along what avocation was not stated, but from an intimate knowledge of the class born of four years' association, your prophet is assured that the fame of the favored two will not be gained in the realm of medicine. Hence this prophecy.

There are two ways by which men become famous. One is by thinking a little and by saying a great deal, and the other is by not thinking at all, and saying nothing. And in accordance with the first many a vamping, superficial individual acquires the reputation of being a brilliant man; and in accordance with the second many a block-head—like the owl, the most stupid of all birds—is held a man of wisdom by a discerning world. 1929 will find two men of this class famous.

Allen, finding in medicine no outlet for his particular gift, has forsaken it and is now filling the position of a long since departed E. V. Debs as the Prince of Knockers. His fame will rival that of Demosthenes in his day and that of Debs in his. History records that Demosthenes suffered from an impediment of speech in his early manhood. So did Allen. Ergo Allen will be a second Demosthenes. As his mind follows the same channel as does Debs', his oratory will be of a like type.

Wasson. Yet another has left the fold. Wasson has forsaken medicine for politics, in which new field he has become Justice of the Peace and his wisdom and his virtue are as those of Wouter Van Twiller.

The remainder, at this writing, are living their lives, practicing their profession. Each the most respected man, living in the best house, and having married the prettiest girl in his community, are flourishing all.

BOYS OF '09, LONG MAY YOU WAVE!

W. S. WOOLFORD, Prophet.

SENIOR CLASS POEM

Four years ago a pilgrim band
Set forth into an unknown land
 Of Anatomy and Pills,
Of Germs so small they can't be seen,
With Cells and Atoms in between,
 And a Catalogue of Ills.
How many strange new words there were,
We pilgrims found them everywhere,
 Except within our heads,
And all of that first year was spent
In contemplating what it meant
 To be among the "Meds."

So passed away that year and then
When autumn rolled around again,
 Behold a band of Sophomores!
So studious, grave and dignified
That all the doctors prophecied
 We'd be the coming meteors.
Our band reached next the Junior state
And then we seemed to cultivate
 A disposition gay;
'Twas quite unheard of heretofore,
But we were filled with hopes galore
 So near seemed graduation day.

To mighty Seniordom at last
We've reached, the goal of four years past,
 Four years of toil and labor.
Our band which once stood haltingly,
Has trod each path unfalteringly,
 Up to the very door
Of the practicing profession.
There is then a little session,
 Within a certain "green room."
O how we quake and trembling wait,
To learn the verdict of our fate!
 Will it be joy or doom?

Of all the days of all the year,
The one that seems to us most dear
 Is our commencement day.
'Tis then we hear our victory,
'Tis then our sheep-skins we first see,
 Sealed by our U. of A.
How proud we are to hold these fast
While friends crowd round our hands to clasp
 With words of kindest praise!
We gladly listen to the cheers,
Remembrance sweet 'twill be for years
 This happiest of our college days.

They say each joy a sorrow hath
So often as an aftermath
 In this strange world of ours.
'Tis so with us, for lurking here,
A shadow darkens as we near
 The last of goodby hours.
To teachers, words of thanks we speak,
We wish our classmates all God-speed,
 For more there is not time;
While in our thoughts we know that we
Will always honor and revere
 Our class of nineteen nine.

HISTORY OF JUNIOR CLASS

Oct. the 1st, 1906, found a band of ambitious youth assembled in the Med. Building of the University of Arkansas, filled with enthusiasm of becoming renowned in a science that is second to none. We were what might be termed a regiment of brigadier generals, there being no privates in our ranks. We soon realized, however, in order to promote the affairs of the class as a whole the need of an organization. A class meeting was called and election and installation of officers consummated. We then with one united effort began to make a record that at once marked it for future greatness. As "Soph's" we distinguished ourselves in many ways. Our greatest claim to eminence being the success with which it transformed itself from a state of weird heterogeneity into a harmonious whole.

Led by the hand of a faculty filled with the spirit of the philosophers of old, we have come thus far in one united struggle for the goal. As Juniors we possessed a rare combination of doing thorough work and having a good time. We have maintained our position in the firing line, kept our colors to the front and in every phase of University activity. The Juniors have had their share of representation, for with industry and sobriety the Juniors cannot be surpassed and we are confident that in some future day there will be some of our number who will attain positions that will do credit to our Alma Mater.

Junior, Junior, may your future all be bright,

Junior, Junior, May your burden all be light,

May you never falter

In the final test.

No matter where you go,

May your record be the best.

And in the future may we all meet again,

For there's nothing so dear to us one and all

As the class of 1910.

B. C. MIDDLETON, Class Historian.

HISTORY OF THE MEDICO CHIRURGICAL CLASS OF '09

The autumn of 1905 shall long remain sacred in the minds of a band of pilgrims who entered upon the laborious task of mastering the branches of medical science.

Most of the pilgrims have pursued the lion from the beginning to almost the commencement. But, alas, there are a few who could not stand the rushing, mighty wind, and have remained for the work of the good Samaritan. The pilgrims had not long been upon the duties of their new work till all signs were familiar to each: each had learned to chew boarding-house steak and to appreciate a pass on Physiology. At the same time a search was begun for the Philosopher's stone, that all diseases might be healed at their will.

As weeks and months passed, their ambitions grew: some aspiring to be Mayos, others to be Oslers, Hares, and Tysons—some have hoped to be laboratorians that the cure for tuberculosis might be discovered, while others wished to establish sanitariums that the cure might be practiced. Since they signed the register in 1905, peace, harmony, and a feeling of brotherly love have reigned supreme, there has arisen a college spirit that has never before existed in this branch of our state institution. They have been active factors in promoting sociability among the students and have encouraged religious and moral principles. They have aided in organizing an athletic association, which, though in its infancy, has already been a credit to this school.

There are now existing societies and various other features such as add to the spirit and awakening of all institutions of learning. This band of pilgrims has not only aided in putting these features on foot, but have cultivated high ideals of professional life and have advanced manly principles in all matters of business and social affairs. Now as they leave this place where drills have been given, and theories discussed, and where love and friendship have been acquired, each one expresses himself to the other, "You have run a great race, you have fought a good fight."

C. S. MEANS, Class Historian.

WHAT THE LADY DOCTOR TOOK

When Mary Ann announced at home
 That she would be a doctor,
 Her father laughed, her mother cried,
 The news had "simply shocked 'er."
 They told her tales of aches and pains
 Of operations fearful—
 Of chills and cancers, wens and fits—
 And death scenes sad and tearful.

But Mary Ann had set her head,
 In spite of sneer and cynic
 She packed her duds into a grip
 And headed for a clinic.
 The dreadful things she feared to hear
 Of students petticoated
 She heard not, though her class was all
 The trousered kind which voted.
 She studied hard of blood and bones
 How they were put together,
 Of what affected them in dry,
 And what in cloudy weather.
 She learned of all the curious ways
 That microbes bore and bite us
 Of every sort of human ill
 Down to appendicitis.

She learned to tell without a guess
 Real things from mere illusions
 Of anaesthetics and of cysts—
 Of polyps and transfusions.
 And when she'd learned the thousand ways
 Of mankind's certain ailing,
 And knew what pills and salves to use
 Without a chance of failing.

She then herself took a complaint,
 "A case of 'heart affection,'"
 The kind young doctor she had called
 Said after short reflection.
 And when he hinted at a cure
 She turned diagnostician,
 And leaving tonic, powders, pills,
 She took the whole physician.

SKETCH OF PERICLEAN

The Periclean Society was organized in 1905 by four young men who withdrew from the Garland. Since that time the Periclean has grown steadily and is now one of the largest and most enthusiastic societies in the University. This Society makes no distinction between classes. Any young man who desires to do good, helpful literary work will make no mistake in joining the Periclean. As a special inducement to ambitious young men, two medals are offered by the Society, one to the young man delivering the best original oration, the other to the member who excels in a series of two declamations.

The Garland is one of the oldest and best societies in the University. It was organized in 1886. During its long life it has ever been recognized as a leading society, and has given to its members literary training not excelled by any other society, and has been constantly successful in contests. The Johnson loving cup has been won by this society more often than by any other. This society may justly be called the parent society. From it other societies have been organized.

A SKETCH

The Lee was organized in 1906. It meets every Friday evening in the expression rooms. This society receives only collegiates as members, and contains some of the most energetic men of the University. Although it is one of the youngest organizations of the kind in the University, last year it won the Johnson cup in the second inter-society contest, in which it has ever participated. Last year the men who won the Oklahoma debate were from this society, and this year two of the inter-collegiate debaters are Lees.

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

LITERARY SOCIETIES

There are seven literary societies in the University for the accommodation of those students who are interested in literary work. The opportunities are so valuable that no student can afford to neglect them. The oldest of these societies is the Mathesian.

The increased number of students in the University, together with the growing interest in literary work rendered the facilities of one society inadequate. This resulted in the founding of the Garland in 1886, the second oldest society in the University. This progressive tendency was not checked in the establishment of these two societies, but continued its onward course and in 1901 the Periclean was founded. The year, 1906, marks the beginning of a deeper interest in literary work, manifesting itself in the establishment of two societies, the Lee and Sapphic. The Lee restricts its membership to collegiate students. The Sapphic extends its membership only to the young ladies of the University. The Demosthenean and Franklin Societies were established in 1908.

There are two prizes offered for inter-society contests, one by Dr. Brough of the Department of Economics and Sociology, the other by Dr. Johnson of the Department of Pedagogy and Philosophy. The prize offered by Dr. Brough is a medal of the value of ten dollars. This contest consists of a series of two debates, the first impromptu, the second prepared, and is a regular attraction of the commencement exercises. Representatives in this debate are elected by the various societies. This medal was won by the Periclean, 1906 and 1907, the Garland 1905, 1908. The prize given by Dr. Johnson is a valuable loving cup. This is an oratorical contest and is also a feature of the commencement exercises. This cup was won by the Periclean 1903 and 1904, the Garland 1905, 1906 and 1907, and the Lee 1908. Besides these inter-society contests, there are prizes offered in the different societies, which greatly stimulate the interest. Prof. Philbeck offers a gold headed cane to be contested for by the members of the Garland. Miss Naomi Williams gives a loving cup to be contested for by the members of the Periclean. President Tillman offers a medal to the member of the Sapphic who writes the best essay, and Mrs. Crockett gives a medal to the Lee for the best declamation.

While the past history of literary work in the University has been characterized by a deepening and broadening of college spirit, revealing itself in the increased membership and the founding of new societies, yet the interest is not as great as it should be. The support given by the faculty and the hearty good will prevailing among the students indicate that greater things may yet be achieved.

INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATES

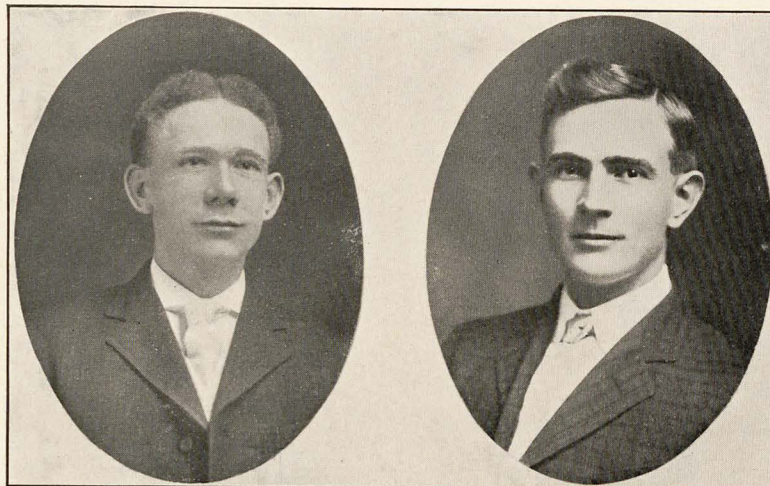

In the year of 1906 the literary spirit of the University of Arkansas was aroused successfully for the first time. Up to this time we had never had any collegiate debates. At this date, arrangements were made with Southwestern University at Georgetown, Texas, for a series of three debates. The first of this series was held in Georgetown, in the spring of 1906. Messrs. Abe Collins and G. A. Hurst represented the University of Arkansas. In this, our first attempt, we were unsuccessful, being outscored by a few points.

Two debates were arranged for the year of 1907. One was with Drury College of Missouri, and the other was the second of the series with Southwestern University. The one with Drury was held on our home grounds. This debate we won. The one with Southwestern University was also held on our home grounds and we were equally successful against them. Abe Collins and A. Starbuck held up the banner for the University of Arkansas against Drury and Messrs. A. J. Johnson and J. P. Woods were our faithful representatives against Southwestern University.

The year of 1908 was a very prosperous one for the University of Arkansas in the line of intercollegiate debates. We were fortunate in securing the efficient services of Messrs. W. J. Jernigen, J. P. Woods, O. E. Williams and J. J. DuLaney. During the spring of 1908 we had our first debate with the University of Oklahoma. Jernigen and Woods were our representatives in this debate. Of course victory was ours. O. E. Williams and J. J. DuLaney represented us in the Drury debate which was held at Drury. With their eloquence and persuasion they even brought victory out of the opponent's country.

This year we have been more than fortunate in securing the services of Messrs. D. L. Ford, J. G. Arnold, E. A. Waterfield, and A. P. Paton to represent Arkansas. We have a debate with Baylor University this year on our home ground. D. L. Ford and J. G. Arnold will represent us. E. A. Waterfield and A. P. Patton will represent us against Oklahoma. The University of Arkansas has shown her superiority in debate for the past three years. Out of five debates we have won four, and with the able representatives we have this year, victory is assuredly ours.

SKETCH

The Agricultural Society was organized in 1908. Seeing the need of organized effort along agricultural and horticultural lines, the Seniors of the agricultural class began work and affected an organization which the University has long needed, the Agricultural Society.

It is the purpose of the society to create a larger interest in the agricultural work in the University, as well as throughout the state: to stimulate investigation and to furnish knowledge along lines not necessarily brought out in the Agricultural Course; also to arouse an interest in research work on the later and more important agricultural topics of the day. Weekly meetings are held in the Agricultural Building.

It is the aim of this department to give a thorough course of instruction in technic, interpretation, and expression of the best compositions in Piano, Violin, Organ, Voice, and Elocution. To aid pupils in acquiring confidence in themselves, a series of recitals is given in which all take part. To cultivate a taste for really good music, a series of concerts is given by the faculty.

The faculty is composed of teachers who are specialists in their work, all of whom have enjoyed exceptional opportunities for study and have records of successful experience.

The method used makes constant appeals to the mind, thereby building and educating the pupil to a positive technic, confidence, accuracy and ability of expression. We strive to teach the pupil how to think, how to practice, how to memorize, how to play and how to teach.

SNAP SHOTS TAKEN AT ODD MOMENTS

THE TORCH

On Friday, December 11th, 1908, evidence was first given that a Senior organization, now known as "The Torch," existed in the University of Arkansas. This fact was made known by means of posters scattered throughout the University and over the campus, and by the Senior girls coming to Chapel, robed in cap and gown, each girl carrying in her right hand a torch, and lastly by the announcement of the founding of "The Torch in The University Weekly."

This organization, founded by the Senior girls of 1909, at the instigation of the Dean of Women, was instituted for the purpose of drawing the Senior girls closer together, making the last year of their University life better and more dear to them than that of any other year. And furthermore for the purpose of maintaining high ideals of womanhood in the University.

At present the privilege of membership in "The Torch" is extended to all girls in the Senior Class. But as the University grows and the classes become larger, it is hoped that its membership will become purely honorary. As a step in this direction it has been decided to choose from the Junior Class four girls—two to be chosen on the basis of scholarship and two as the best all-round girls of the class. To these girls will be handed down "The Torch." They will be given the privilege of attending the meetings of "The Torch" during the months of May and June, and to them will be entrusted "The Torch" for the following year.

THE Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association of the University of Arkansas was founded in 1882. At first much enthusiasm was manifested in the work. The Association was so weak, however, that it could not secure a general secretary. The work dragged on for about a year in a desultory fashion, and then stopped altogether. The Association did not secure a lecture course or introduce the Bible Study Courses. For nearly twenty years no effort was made to revive the Y. M. C. A., and it seemed that the first unsuccessful attempt had discouraged all other efforts along the same line.

In 1901, a movement was put on foot to re-establish the Y. M. C. A. in the University. On March 16th, 1902, seventeen young men met in the President's office to discuss the matter. At the close of the meeting an Association had been organized and a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer had been elected. The Association soon secured a charter and became a member of the national organization. The first meetings were held in room seventeen, in the Main building, and were not very well attended. In a short time rooms in the basement were fitted up and the place of meeting was changed to that place.

From this point the Association made progress slowly but surely. The Bible Study courses were introduced and new life infused into the religious meetings. In 1905, Mr. Earnest Howe was secured as general secretary. His arrival marked a new epoch in the development of the Association. A lecture course was established on a self-supporting basis and some of the best lecturers were secured. Under his management the Association began to do more for the new students. The Y. M. C. A. handbook was gotten out, and assistance rendered the new students in getting boarding places. In 1907, Mr. B. W. Dickson succeeded Mr. Howe as general secretary, which position he now holds. Under his guidance the Association has shown a marked improvement along all lines.

A REVIEW OF THE FOOT BALL SEASON

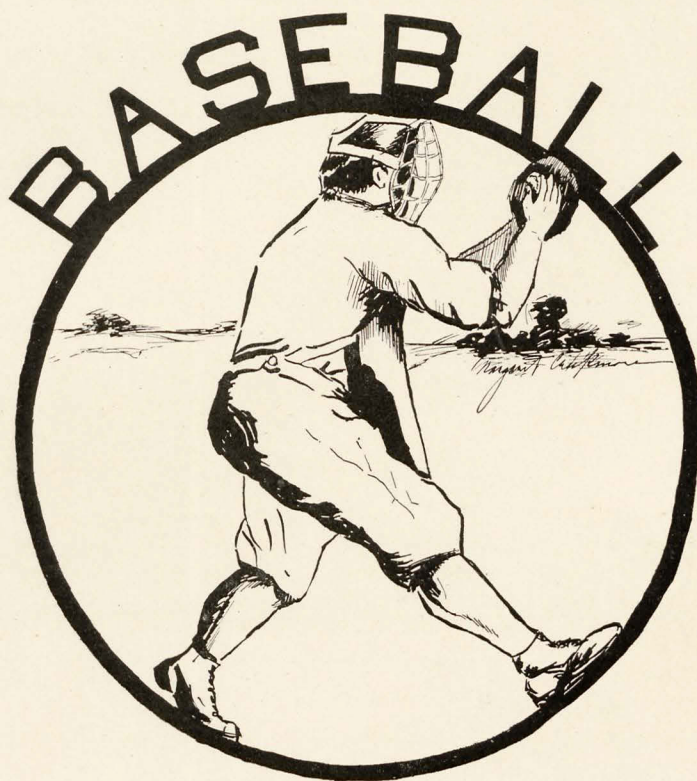

At the opening of the season the 'varsity's foot ball outlook, to put it mildly, was not very auspicious. Milford was not expected back, many of last year's veterans did not return and we had few new men of experience to replace them. Capt. Nelson, Stanley Phillips, Davis, Dickson, Orrick, Hixson, Fleming, and later Milford, returned to the University. It looked as though we would have a line which would be very weak in places, but "Red" Parker and "Pat" Wright, both weighing over two hundred pounds, made good as guards, P. C. Huntley, a last year's scrub took center, and Creekmore and Sparks made things move at quarter.

Coach Bezdek, with his characteristic energy, made haste to get the team in practice. He emphasized head work, team work, and hard work, with the result that the raw and inexperienced men were soon playing a good game and the old players were working together better than ever before, and the Haskell Indians were defeated 6 to 0 in the first game of the season, on Oct. 3rd, and just one week later the University of Mississippi was smothered 33 to 0. Then came a halt, St. Louis U. defeated us 24 to 0 and Creekmore and Nelson were so injured in the game that neither could play for over two weeks. Meanwhile we demonstrated our superiority over anything in the state by defeating Henderson 51 to 0. While still in a crippled condition, the team left to play Oklahoma University, which later defeated Texas 50 to 0, and was defeated 27 to 5. Then our battered team went to Austin, where the long horns defeated us in a listless game 21 to 0. Right here comes the saddest part of this review, that part dealing with the death of Earnest Dickson. Dickson played in the Oklahoma game without apparent injury, but on the way to Austin he began to complain. He was placed in a Sanitarium and left there, still without any one thinking him in danger. On Nov. 15th a telegram was received here announcing his death, caused by a complication of peritonitis and pneumonia. His death cast a deep gloom over the University and the game with Drury was called off.

The University next defeated the Kansas State Normals on Nov. 14th by a score of 42 to 12, and a week later beat Ouchita by a score of 73 to 0. All was now in readiness for the big game with Louisiana University at Little Rock. The student body was sanguine, Coach Bezdek and the team hopeful. It seemed that the team was at its highest point of efficiency. The fact that we were defeated showed that Louisiana had the strongest team in the Southwest. The score should not have been as large as it was, for our men seemed afflicted with stage fright at first. They soon tightened up, however, and gave Fleming a chance to score four points by a place kick from the field and held Louisiana to two touchdowns during the remainder of the first half and to only one in the second half.

In summing up the season, it may be said that we won five games and lost four. We scored a total of 214 points as against a total of 120 points against us. There is some satisfaction, too, in knowing that we were defeated by none but first class teams and that we scored twice as many points against Louisiana as all other teams did put together, Auburn alone having scored two points. We can look back and see that we are progressing rapidly, and we can look forward to a much brighter future.

ARKANSAS BASE BALL

The University has held its own in base ball with the other colleges and universities of the Southwest for many years. Base ball, America's most popular game, certainly does not lack for popularity at the University. The contests on the diamond are always attended with a good show of college spirit. The game is so liked that every organization has its base ball team. Many class and society games are played.

In 1907 we defeated our ancient enemy, the Texas Long Horns, from Texas University. Last year we beat them again by a score of 2 to 1. Nineteen hundred eight was a very successful year for us in base ball, although "Big" Keith, our champion pitcher was not with us. We scored a total of 120 points against our opponents, while only 50 points were scored against us. Out of twenty-three games played, we lost only five. Among the colleges and universities which we defeated were Kansas State Normal, Baylor University of Texas, Union University of Tennessee, Fairmont College and Drury. Our unprecedented success was due to a large extent to the work of our coach, Vandergrift.

This year will doubtless be more successful. Coach Hugo Bezdek thinks that we will have a fine team. Among the new men who will in all probability make good, are "Pat" Wright, Coyle, "Si" Vann, and Walls. Vann has played with Drury for several seasons. It is useless to mention the old men, for they are known to all of us. The team will make a northern trip this year, including Chicago. On this trip St. Louis U., Washington U., and several other Northern Universities will be played. Let us hope that this year will be our most successful one.

DECEMBER 11

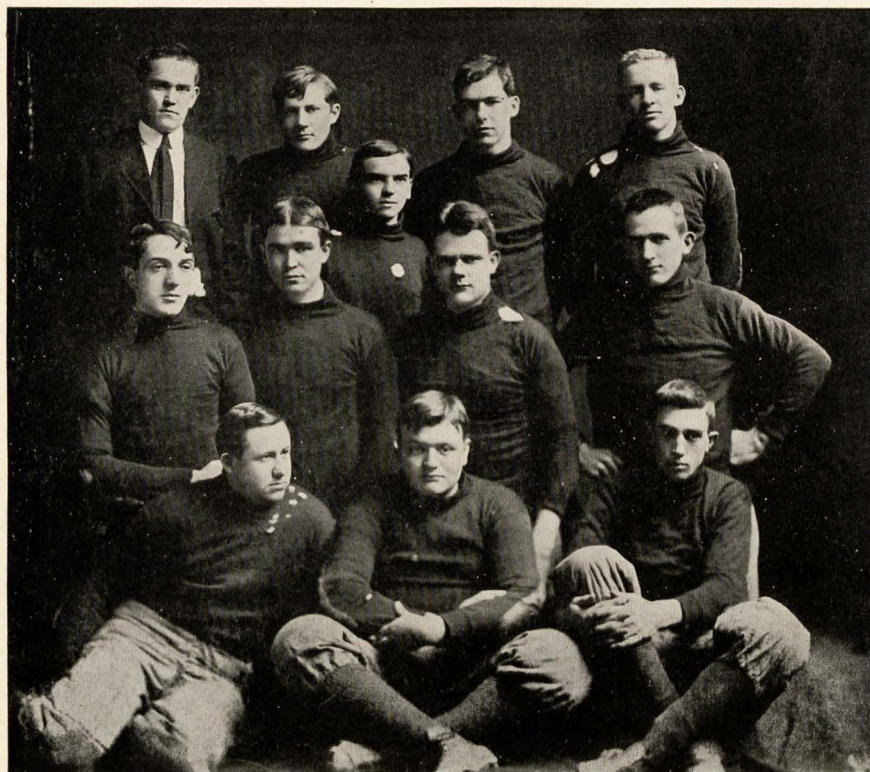

The 11th of December was a day full of interest to every Junior and Senior. Some time previous to this date a society was organized, composed of the Senior girls. Somehow the Junior girls found out some of the secrets of this organization. One of the secrets which they discovered was that the Senior girls were aiming to appear in Chapel on the morning of the day on which the game was to be played with their caps and gowns and bearing in their hands candles. An astute Junior formulated a plan to slip the caps and gowns of the Seniors from their rooms. Somehow, every cap and gown found itself in a secret recess, known only to the Junior girls, on the day before the game. The Senior girls made known this misfortune to the Senior boys, who spent a good part of that night searching for caps and gowns. Their movements excited the suspicion of the Junior boys and led them to keep a close watch to find out what the Seniors were up to.

The Senior girls appeared in caps and gowns in Chapel the next morning, however. To offset this stunt, the Junior girls took possession of the choir and sung the class song. The Juniors had the much better yells and succeeded in out-yelling the Seniors. After Chapel a good deal of class spirit was manifested in the corridors.

The game was called at 3:30. It was a hard fought game and every man fought his best, for he realized that his class was watching him with the most intense interest. The game ended 14 to 0 in favor of the Seniors.

FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE FOOTBALL GAME

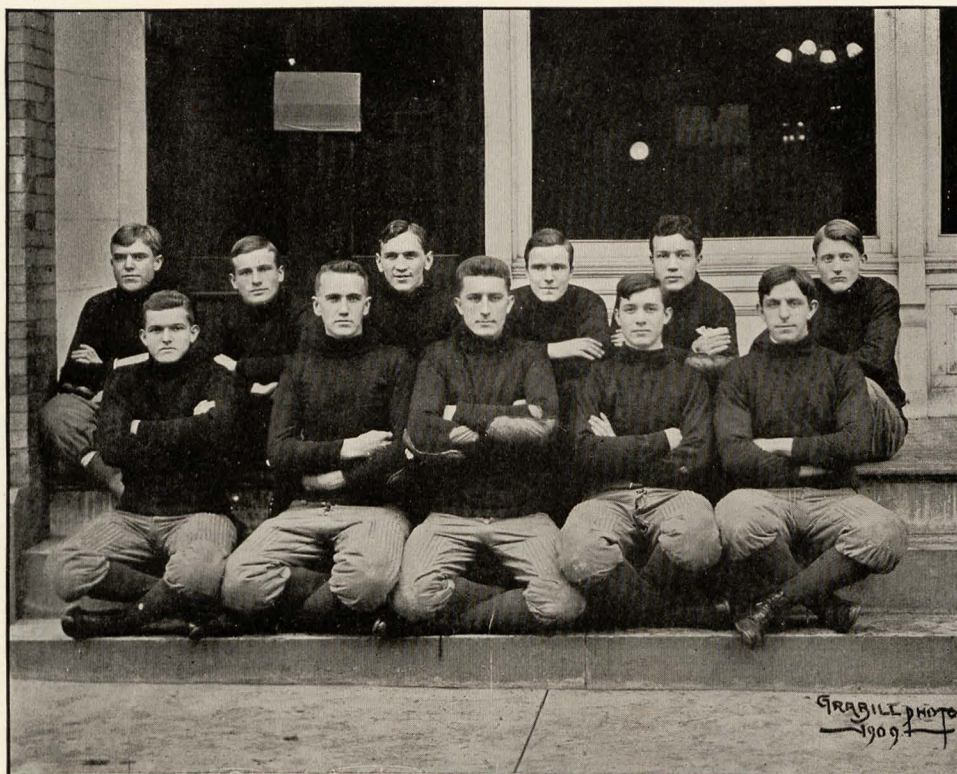

The Freshman-Sophomore game was the last game of the season of '08. Before the game, the general sentiment was that the Sophs would have a walk-over, but the result of the game showed that the Freshmen were a formidable foe. The interest during the game was great. The Juniors yelled for the Freshmen, the Seniors yelled for the Sophs. The first half was decidedly in favor of the Freshmen, as they made their only scores during this half. Almost every time the Freshmen kicked they recovered the ball. After about eight minutes of play, Left Halfback Tatum carried the ball over for the first touchdown on a line buck. Kuntz kicked goal. Soon another touchdown was made by the Freshmen, and Kuntz again kicked goal. The first half closed with the Sophs in possession of the ball in the center of the field.

The second half showed both teams fighting their best without either gaining much. The Sophomores pulled off several forward passes, and taking everything into consideration they seemed to play a better game. Fullback McClain for the Sophs seemed to be the only Soph who could advance the ball any distance. Although injured in the first half, he showed his grit and remained in the game till its close.

Much of the credit for the Freshman victory goes to Bradford, right tackle. The game ended 12 to 0 in favor of the Freshmen. The game was remarkable for being fast and clean.

The Dormitory is justly proud of its tough little team. In the Dormitory team men are trained for the 'varsity team. Many of our best 'varsity foot ball men have had previous training on this team. This year it is composed mostly of little men. They can play good foot ball, even if they are little. Very few indeed are the defeats they have suffered. They have not suffered defeat in two years. The work of Tatum at full and Starnes at center merits especial mention.

In Memory of Hugh Parish

Dead is his youth, in his unsullied glory ;
Dying as perish the blossoms in fall ;
Cut off all too soon and ended his stay,
Of life's mystic raptures, repeated by ail.

Cold blows the breath of the North on the flowers,
And cruel death blew on him even as chill,
Killing their beauty and stilling his powers ;
See him, how calm he lies, lifeless and still.

Low hang the clouds from the arch of the heavens,
Ragged and jagged their rough, rugged forms,
And grief like those clouds hangs low o'er his comrades :
Dispel it, thou great One, who stillest the storm.

Softly—how softly—they tread in the chamber.
A Silence has fallen that came not till now ;
Pay we respect with a sad, mournful rev'rence ;
Twine we the laurel of grief 'round his brow.

He lies 'neath the first, fallow snow of the season,
Peacefully resting 'neath the cold sod.
His soul in its glory has passed to its heaven :
Our classmate has gone home to dwell with his God.

To the Memory of Earnest Dickson

We, as loyal students of Cardinal and White,
Weep for "Dick," who has gone from our sight;
We weep, we mourn, we spare not tears,
For we have loved him for two long years.

Oh, thou sad hour, why did'st thou come so soon,
And pluck a bud before it was full grown;
But why didn't you wait until the bud was full blown,
Or either snatch a rose, that was ripened with perfume.

"Dick" was a sire of the 'varsity's name,
Who won for Arkansas an exalted fame,
He was our hero, and our champion, too,
He was the one who scored on St. Louis U.

It was a beautiful November evening, calm and still,
When "Dick" for his last time marched onto the field.
Here with the "Sooners," oh, how he did fight!
He met his death on the next Thursday night.

Still onward rocks the dreary day,
Each has his day, then fades away,
Yet we give a word of love and praise
Whate'er other people may say.

If we should not to the world impart
The love and secrets of the heart,
They are treasured away in our inmost souls,
Where they stay, faded flowers of old.

Isn't it sad to see a life so fair,
Drift away on the desert air;
Although 'tis a debt we must pay,
Be it now or some future day.

If time passes us, with careless ease,
Ne'er will she pass again to appease.
But she is gone, and further goes
Till she brings life to a close.

Colonel George Washington Murphy

The legal pages of this Annual are gratefully dedicated to the memory of "Colonel George Washington Murphy," a distinguished member of our faculty and an eminent lawyer of our beloved state. We as students take this opportunity to express our gratitude and appreciation for the boundless good and wisdom that our honored Colonel has been so good to give us.

May his years be extended far beyond the allotted three score years and ten is our wish, that we as young lawyers may be benefitted by his learning and wisdom; is the wish of our Alma Mater that her standard of work may be raised by his able lectures; is the wish of our glorious commonwealth that she may be aided by his ripe intellect to take an advanced standing in jurisprudence among her sister states.

FACULTY ECHOES

"Now let us see what the statute says."

"Well, I think I can illustrate it by an example."

"Now let us look at that for a moment."

"You must learn to reason it out."

"I don't know."

"Now let us analyze that and see what we have."

"Mr. P., what do you think of that? Next."

"Mr. K., what is the rule laid down in Scrooge v. State, 82 Ark. 927?"

"Where the proof is clear and the preponderance of evidence is great."

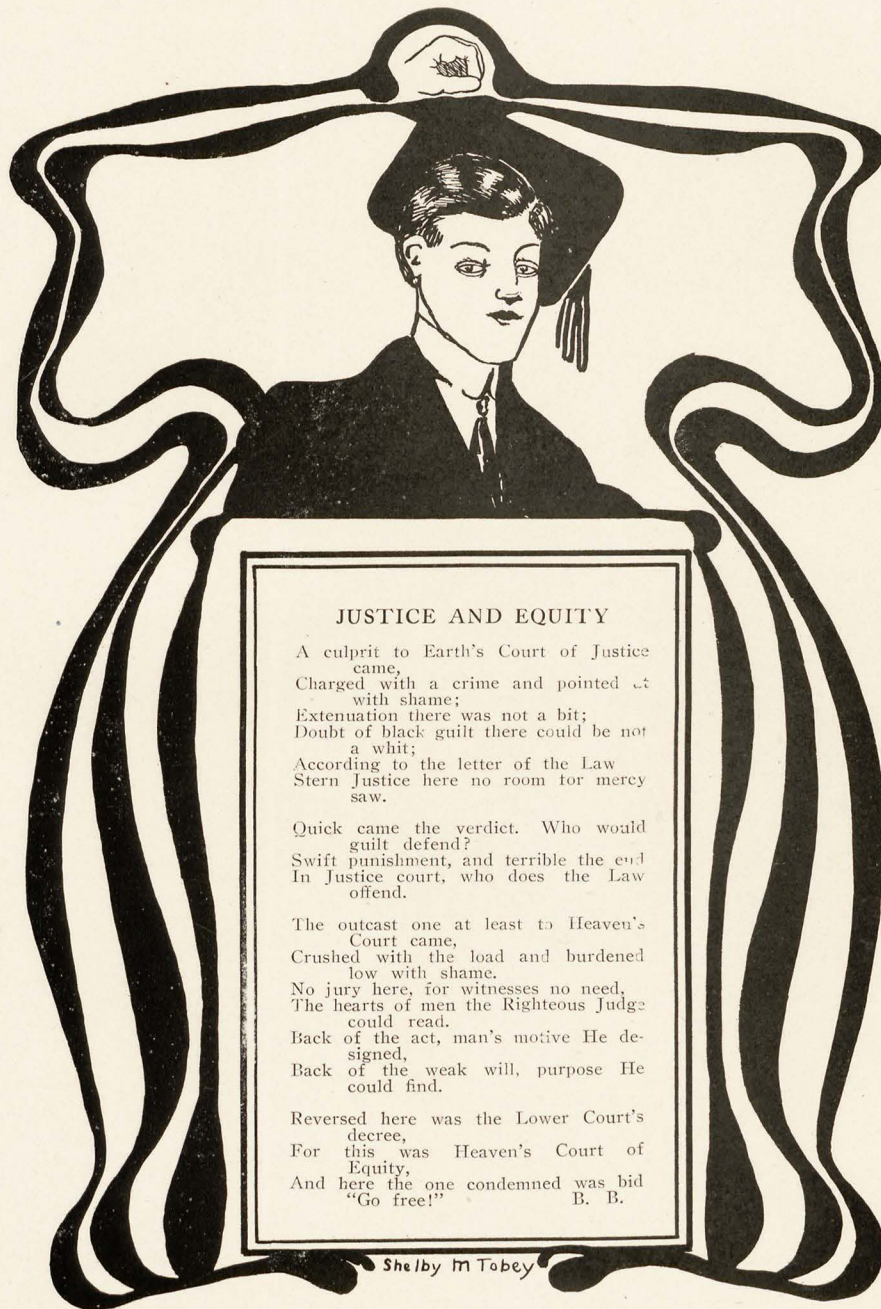

"Yes, certainly, when it occurs by operation of law."

"You've got to dig it out, I tell you."

"The U. S. Supreme Court decided in Jones v. Smith."

"That's like a case I had down here in Logan County."

"I don't want to be unreasonable, but I must insist that you pay close attention."

JUSTICE AND EQUITY

A culprit to Earth's Court of Justice came,
Charged with a crime and pointed at
with shame;
Extenuation there was not a bit;
Doubt of black guilt there could be not a whit;
According to the letter of the Law
Stern Justice here no room for mercy saw.

Quick came the verdict. Who would guilt defend?
Swift punishment, and terrible the end
In Justice court, who does the Law offend.

The outcast one at least to Heaven's
Court came,
Crushed with the load and burdened low with shame.
No jury here, for witnesses no need,
The hearts of men the Righteous Judge could read.
Back of the act, man's motive He designed,
Back of the weak will, purpose He could find.

Reversed here was the Lower Court's decree,
For this was Heaven's Court of Equity,
And here the one condemned was bid
"Go free!" B. B.

SENIOR CLASS INFORMATION

The average age of the class is 24.7 years. The average height, 5 ft. 9 $\frac{1}{3}$ inches. The average weight is 158 lbs., 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. There is some difference of religious opinion in the class. We have two Episcopalians, four Presbyterians, seven Methodists, one Hard Shelled Baptist, two Freethinkers, one Friend, one Israelite, and a number of outlaw denominations. Tobey calls himself a Mohammedan, while Blasdel claims to be a Republican. The nationalities represented are divers. The English and Dutch predominate. There are four German-Americans, three Irish-Germans and two Dutch-Italians, two Irish, three Dutch. Two or three give strong evidence of Argentinian origin. Seven men have escaped without a condition or flunk of any kind. Six have never been in the Police Court. About half the class refrain from smoking. The drink question is at present in a very unsettled condition.

1. Who is the handsomest man in the class? No one voted for.
2. Who is the ugliest? Look at class picture.
3. Who is the brightest? Lockler and Condray are about even on this number. Lockler is naturally bright, while Condray has achieved his by persistent questioning.
4. Who is the most versatile? Mashburn wins this easily by his all around ability to speak an unknown tongue, to teach a mute or to handle legislators.
5. Who is the smoothest? Mashburn, Nolan and Beldin were about even on this event, but Belden was given the decision on his natural ability to refuse to answer a question in lectures and yet please the Dean.
6. Who is the biggest bluffer? Three were even on this. It is not necessary to name them.
7. Who is the best (?) politician? Atkinson was a mile ahead here, as shown by his ability in manipulating the famous "ring," until Terril dethroned him in the famous "Brook-Baxter" war of January last.
8. Who will be the most successful? At present Blasdel shows greater abilities and better form in legal lines; while Andrew by his great genius in raising money whenever needed promises to outshine the Andrew of Steel (steal) fame.
9. What is your favorite study? Twenty voted equity, while some three or four gave domestic relations the honor.
10. Who is your favorite actress? Blanch Walsh was given the honor. Bourland voted for the second from the right end of the second row in "Comin' thro the Rye."
11. Who is your favorite lecturer? A large majority were for the Dean for various reasons. Caldwell divided his vote on this, and gave one-half vote to Judge Riffel.
12. Who is the happiest? Davenport and Lockler were close contestants for this place. Davenport finally winning by one monster smile, showing better form than his rival.

The grand hall of the Goar Lyceum presented a royal appearance. From the frescoed ceiling of oak, mellowed by the varnish of years, to the floor polished by the passage of countless feet, it shone with a welcoming glow. Yards of bunting hung artistically from its time-stained walls, and draped from post to post its crimson folds, reflected the atmosphere of anticipation. Above the president's chair hung the motto of the Lyceum, "If you are an anvil, be patient; if a hammer, knock." Every chair was filled, but the accustomed laughter and badinage was lacking on this particular evening and instead there reigned an oppressive silence, broken only by the ticking of the clock and the running of the sand in the hour glass. The oppressive silence was happily broken when Mashburn, President of the Lyceum, took his exalted seat and addressed the society in a low and distinct voice:

"Gentlemen of the Goar Lyceum: I well know that it is unnecessary for me to state the name of our distinguished visitor this evening, but for the benefit of those who are ignorant of the purpose of his visit, I will state that it is for the purpose of studying the Functions, analogous, and structural characteristics, as well as the hypothesis, history, rise and fall, modification, differentiation and devolution of the genius Lex, and chooses our honored Goar Lyceum that he may study the same in embryo. I might also say by way of preparation that the party in question has an overwhelming penchant to question those crossing his path, a cultivated power of observation, and a shrewd manner of accomplishing any desired purpose, so beware, gentlemen, I have the pleasure of announcing the arrival of The Man from Mars."

The folding doors were opened wide, and the visitor was escorted in state into the meeting by the Executive Committee, Messrs. Blasdel, Lockler and Perkins. The Lyceum stood to receive them, and gave the yell:

"Boom, boom, law, law, mars, mars, comets and stars.
Hit him on the wish bone, soak him on the jaw;
Send for the ambulance, rah! rah! rah!"

The visitor was welcomed by Thurman in his usual happy vein, and was presented, on behalf of the Lyceum, with the school pin, being a column of retainers, rampant, or a field of contingent fees, after which the sealed program for the evening was opened.

The first number of the program was, "Brains, and How to Detect them in the Goar Lyceum," by Caldwell, the peerless promulgator of painless parliamentary procedure. After the silence was broken, Tobey, the absent-minded instigator of artistic atrocities, was introduced and with a small piece of crayon and a confident air, executed a sketch on the blackboard, which was unanimously pronounced to be the perfect likeness of a night rider. This offended Tobey, who had attempted to portray the Dean, and he withdrew in indignation.

The next number was an address by Biggs on the subject, "Why I am not General Counsel for the Rock Island Railroad." This was excellent and everyone saw clearly the reason, as well as the purpose our wise program committee had in providing such a valuable number to the evening's program. (Some sympathy was shown).

The quartet then gave their new song success, "Don't Cry, dear Father, Don't Cry, I'll be a Lawyer Bye and Bye." This quartet is composed of Blasdel, basso; Johnson, J. H., basso profundo; White and Whiteaker, double bass profunda, and all have good speaking voices.

In the dead silence that followed this number, the visitor inquired as to the identity of the parties in the rear of the room who had so far remained silent. The parties in question were brought forward and introduced as Atkinson, Condray and O'Daniels. Then they were dragged back and their gags replaced.

The visitor seemed interested and all appeared well, but we were hardly prepared to meet the question when gazing into the midst of the audience he said, "Methinks in yon man who holds his hand behind him, and with the other chucks somewhat in his pocket, looks about with a furtive air, I recognize one who belongs to such a body as our Grand Assembly." "No," we sadly replied, "Johnson is only in the Legislature."

The visitor expressed a desire to know where the Lyceum obtained the necessary finances to carry out its purpose. Walden ably explained that we had an excellent system of penalties and fines in not complying with the desires and wishes of the Executive Committee and Treasurer that produced a goodly revenue. "Then," said he, "Each of you contribute to the general fund?" "No," said Walden, "this institution is entirely supported by Pippin & Co."

At this time the Sergeant at Arms was instructed, by motion of Mr. Dickinson, ably seconded by Locklar, to put Messrs. Bourland, White, Perkins, and Nolen under the ban for exceeding the speed limit in producing an excess of smoky atmosphere. They were at once put in the "gagged row."

The visitor next inquired of one called Beldin. Said he, "The young man with the sad face and vacant stare, who thrusts his hands into the empty air as if plucking invisible flowers, why does he such?" We said, "He is seeking to grasp a question that the lecturer asked last week."

"Also the young man in yon corner of stately mein and silent mood, who is he, I pray?" The young man very reluctantly came forward and was introduced as Mr. Andrew of Kansas. "Mr. Andrew," said the visitor, "I am indeed much obliged to meet you, but Kansas is a goodly state, why didst thou leave it?" For an instant there was intense silence, then realizing the full import of the question, weaker men turned pale, and strong men groaned in anguish, then with a shout that caused the Goddess of Liberty on the dome to drop her shield with a clang to the pavement, all shouted in unison, "Oh, why?"

After quiet had been restored Scott gave a reading which was a very strong effort of the imagination, entitled, "How I made a million as business manager."

The next number on the program was a debate between Condray, O'Daniel, Whittaker, and Vedder, on the question, "Resolved, that Married Men should be Excused from Goar Lyceum when Necessary." The society voted that Condray and O'Daniels be given their liberty the rest of the evening, in order to take part in the debate, and also as a reward for good behavior. Mr. Condray made a splendid speech, the theme of which was that the issue was "undemocratic." O'Daniels claimed that it was "too personal," and demanded a verdict in favor of the affirmative. The judges, being friendly to the negative, gave them the decision. Mr. Atkinson was very much surprised at this and moved that we reconsider. Mr. Perkins moved that it be tabled, and the chair put Mr. Perkin's motion and it carried by a big majority, largely through Mr. Pippin's great influence. Mr. McCarty was somewhat taken off his feet by such whirlwind procedure, and in a dazed condition he could be seen dimly, through a cloud of smoke back of Perkins, rising to a point of information. Mr. Scott suggested that he just remain standing.

The president announced that the next order of business was, "Remarks for the good of posterity." Mr. Strawn was recognized and taking the platform with his usual graceful bearing began to address the body on some unknown subject, starting away back in ancient history and coming to modern times he tactfully approached his audience. He then eulogized the various members of the Senior class (those who needed it worst) and stated that in view of the fact that this was the last meeting of the year and also that it was the custom to honor some three members of such class by way of placing their picture in our "Hall of Fame" for their prowess as legal scholars while in school he moved that the Lyceum honor Messrs. D. E. Johnson, Beldin and Caldwell by placing their portraits next to those of the illustrious "Pat" Galligan, the renowned Winn, and other famous "soda-pop orators;" also that Mr. Locklar be honored in particular by a life-sized statue, placed to the right of the speaker's stand. This motion was greatly applauded and Mr. Isgrig ably seconded it with a short, eloquent speech. Mr. Thurman moved to amend the motion by striking out the word Caldwell and inserting Blasdel, giving as his reason it would be much easier to look at the picture. Mr. Young amended the motion further by substituting the name Atkinson for Johnson, giving as his reason that Johnson was a member of the Legislature. At this place so many motions were made and amendments offered that the chair readily recognized Mr. Andrew's motion to table everything, giving as his reason that he didn't think the proper names had been offered. Out of deference to the gentleman for his past services the motion to table carried. The Junior quartet, composed of Shofner, Threlkeel, Pippin, and Rider gave a very appropriate and pleasing selection for the closing number, entitled, "We'll Know More Some Glad Day," after which the Lyceum adjourned sine die.

A SPECIMEN QUIZ

JUDGE: "What is a tort?"

STUDENT: "A crime 'minus the intent.'"

JUDGE: "What is an injunction?"

STUDENT: "A judicial order issued to prevent a party from accomplishing something."

JUDGE: "What is the greatest law of our country?"

LAZY STUDENT: "The law for the conservation of energy."

JUDGE: "What is the unwritten law?"

STUDENT: "That which our most learned lawyers plead when they find none written to suit them."

JUDGE: "What is equity?"

STUDENT: "Equity is that branch of the law which enforces rights."

JUDGE: "What is a corporation?"

STUDENT: "A number of men joined as a legal entity for the purpose of evading the pangs of conscience and thwarting the law."

JUDGE: "What is a court?"

STUDENT: "A number of persons upon whom more dignity is conferred than they can well carry, and who are skilled in juggling the law."

JUDGE: "What is the jurisdiction of a court?"

STUDENT: "Anything and everything of value that is liable to be seized by such court."

JUDGE: "What is the right of eminent domain?"

STUDENT: "The exclusive privilege of a lawyer to deduct his fee before his client takes anything."

JUDGE: "What is a brief?"

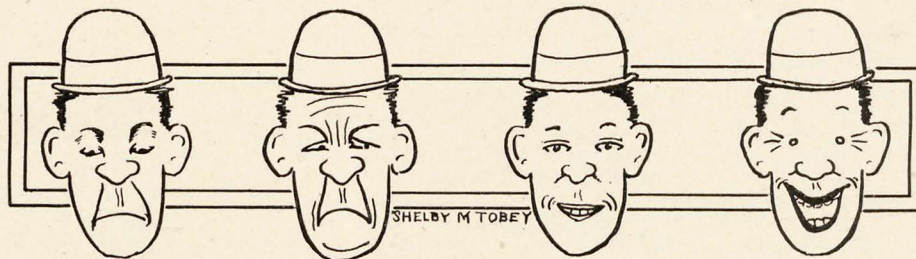

STUDENT: "The verbose written arguments of a lawyer on some issue in law and so called in distinction to what his arguments would be were they spoken."

JUDGE: "What is a jury?"

STUDENT: "A number of persons chosen to defeat a lawyer's effort to do a party wrong."

JUDGE: "What are the respective functions of a lawyer, jury, judge, etc.?"

STUDENT: "The judge passes on issues of law, the jury on matters of fact and a lawyer surpasses both law and fact."

Sayings Wise and Otherwise

"The common law is getting to be very uncommon now."

"If you are beaten, don't squeal but appeal."

"Never argue a point that you see clearly and conscientiously."

"'Tis better to have argued and lost than not to have argued at all."

"Supposin', Judge?"

"A good defense would be to prove an alimony."

"I wonder if the Dean will remember, in looking over these Equity papers, and apply the maxim, 'Equity imputes an intent to fulfill an obligation.'"

"What is Statuary Law?"

"It seems to me that isn't just."

"You are said to be 'seized in fee simple' when you are limited in your charges."

"I wonder if there will be an 'Equity of redemption' in this exam?"

"A cause of action is a potential law suit."

"Be a lawyer, but first be a man."

"A case well begun is a case worth some."

"Seest thou a student diligent in his studies; he shall stand before Supreme Courts."

"A 'Bona Fida' student is one who studies without notice, for a valuable consideration."

"Law suits are the discords on life's harp; i. e., to the clients."

"A problem in law,—given a point in a triangle of difficulty to construct the other three sides."

"A lawyer would make a great soldier, were he to charge as a soldier as he does as a lawyer."

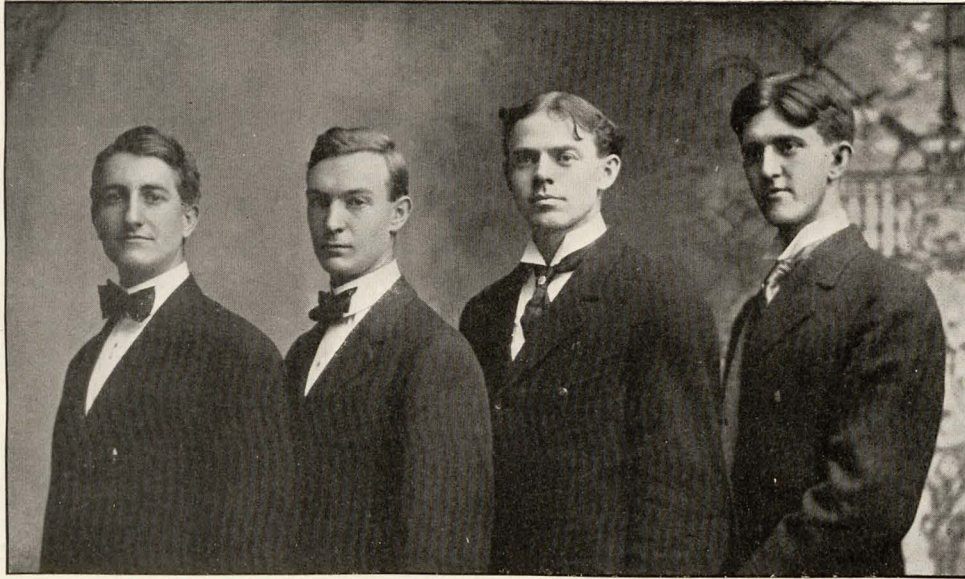

"Some juries are to be appealed to by reason; others by prejudice; while others have to be mauled into submission."

"Any ordinary person can make a law, but it takes a Solon to construe it."

"Not all is law that legislatures enact."

"Press your suit(e) well however small or great, whether it be for a dollar, a suit of clothes, or an American Beauty."

"A legal recipe: Mix the facts of your case with the law in your case, shake well, and administer to the jury in broken doses."

LAW CARDINAL STAFF

Things are Not What They Seem

Some things that many men of lawyers dream
Makes the profession all seem low and mean.
But does it follow he would rob a bank
Who makes a shining mark in legal rank?

Because a lawyer argues black is white
It does not follow black is never right;
Should he be classed with thieves and frauds and fakes
Because a bank account he sometimes breaks?

Without these lawyers, law could not prevail,
And Christianity itself would fail;
There would be no relief for the oppressed,
So thank God for the lawyer—bad or best.

His mission is to set the captive free,
For this who would deny the man a fee?
Though sometimes it may seem a little high,
Far better pay it than get hanged—and die.

When humankind gets in some awful straight,
When fate it seems has hedged him in with hate,
The lawyer comes and makes some small correction
Which turns stern fate into a new direction,
Decreeing that the conflict he will quell
Or send the wicked ones to justice—or to —.

A Nolle Prosse Case

There was a young lawyer, by Jinks!
Who had in his head a few thinks;
He made him a fee,
Something dandy to see
By straightening out legal kinks.

He loved a fair maiden, by Hen!
Who had broken the hearts of ten men;
Said he to a Justice
"Tie tight, fate might bust us,"
So tight did the Squire tie—and then

Domestic squalls followed, by Gum!
And the lawyer was driven from hum;
Said the heart-breaking lassie
Grown scrappy and sassy,
"I'll see that he's kept going some!"

Then the young legal light said, "By Heck!
Of trouble I've had a full peck
Where I acted the goose
I'll go back and get loose
From this Benedict yoke on my neck."

Said the naughty old Justice, "By Gosh!
Your petition young man I must quash
The legal profession
Counts nin-tenths possession
She's got you—so now 'nolle prosse.'"

Confession of an Egotist

I stood on Fame's high mountain top, my forehead bound with bay,
For I had won a golden prize on that Commencement day.

'Twas a great speech, "a mighty speech," the hearers all had said.
So with proud heart I let myself by Vanity be led.

With eye prophetic I looked out into some future hour;
Saw greatness just within my grasp, attainment in my power.

I saw myself in Fame's great hall and heard my praises sung,
I saw vast multitudes of men swayed by my silvery tongue.

And as I saw these wondrous sights the notion came to me
That Eloquence to Law's great door would prove the Magic key.

I felt myself the brightest lad on which the sun e'er shone—
In Oratory's annals bright, my equal never known.

With brain like mine I told myself, "No effort it will take,
But I must go to some Law School, just for convention's sake."

I see it now, and ever will, that bright Autumnal morn
When, big with pride, I started from the place where I was born.

Off to the U. of A. to take its prescribed course in Law
Depending on my eloquence to pass me without flaw.

I knew there was no chance to fail, from that I felt exempt,
And looked upon the plodding ones with pity and contempt.

I put small time in study hours, scarce more on lecture ha'll.
Depending on my eloquence to pass me over all.

So day by day, and month by month, with never count nor measure
I ate the bread of idleness and spent the time in pleasure.

And when examinations came I took them with the class,
With not a fear, no, not a doubt that I would surely pass.

The end was near, my idle course had doomed my high estate.
The castles builded in the air were to lie desolate:

In my report, my grade announced, I heard with anguished groan,
That one there was had fai'ed to pass. 'Twas I—yes I alone.

Led far astray by my conceit, my Ego all to blame,
My vanity had caused my fall, to it I owed my shame.

With failure's gall still on my lips, to make it yet more bitter,
From "Lonesometown-down-on-the-Pike I got this meaning letter

"Dear Son: You thought to master Law. I see that you have failed,
Self admiration in you deep has over all prevail'd

The small successes you attained gave you a false perspective,
You no doubt know it better now—your mind is more receptive,

The cotton blooms down in the field, the corn grows on the hill
I need a farm hand powerful bad, I think you'll fill the bill.

You had your chance, it costs a heap—perhaps you did your best
But come home son and buckle down. Dad now will take a rest"

JOKES

T H E N A U G H T - N I N E C A R D I N A L

A sample of I. L. George's poetry:
Virgil's dead and buried,
And so is Cicero;
And where the two old gents have gone
I wish their works would go.

PROF. RIPLEY: "Mr. Highfill, what planets were known to the ancients?"

HIGHFILL: "Well, sir, there was Venus and Neptune and (after a pause), I think the Earth."

"JOE" ALLEN: "My wife must be a good cook, must be wealthy, beautiful, accomplished, educated and must have a good temper, fine figure, good health, domestic habits, and a good ancestry."

MISS NUNN: "Well, what have you to offer in return?"

Joe's face reddened.

HAWKINS: "Oh, my! this world is at best only a gloomy prison."

MISS GIBSON: "Yes, especially to old bachelors doomed to solitary confinement."

A YOUNG LADY: "You bachelors ought to be heavily taxed."

Y. M. C. A. DICKSON: "Yes, bachelorism is certainly a great luxury."

K. E. COLE (giving one man an extra drill, gives the following order):

CASH: "Hello, Jack, out of the infirmary this soon? Say, there were some young ladies who told me they were coming over there to see you this afternoon."

"JACK" THOMAS: "Oh ———, I am the unluckiest creature alive."

STUDENT: "Say, Prof. Short, how long does it take to break a horse to ride?"

PROF. SHORT: "Sometimes in one ride, sometimes in two rides."

STUDENT: "Did you ever break a horse in two?"

PROF. REYNOLDS: "What is the modern name for Gaul?"

STUDENT: "Vinegar."

MRS. CROCKETT (addressing a poultry man who had twenty turkeys for sale): "I always like to give my boys plenty to do at mea' time. So just pick out the ten toughest of those turkeys for me, will you?"

The man was pleased at the chance of getting rid of the less valuable portion of his flock, and gladly did as he was asked.

MRS. CROCKETT: "Oh, thank you, I will take the other ten."

EDGAR McCULLOCH: "You say Archimedes discovered specific gravity by getting into a bath tub; why had this never occurred to him before?"

PROF. RIPLEY: "Probably this was the first time he had ever taken a bath."

"DAVE" FORD, after several days' hard practice, has finally learned the tune to "If you will only quit your meanness, you will outshine the sun."

By special request Dallas Smith's name is again mentioned in the CARDINAL. He is greatly disappointed that he didn't receive more attention last year.

NEIMEYER: "He is sick, Professor."

PROF. CARUTHERS: "He just walked up the steps behind me."

NEIMEYER: "Oh, he just said he was sick, Professor."

O. J. Ferguson has received a new degree, the degree of D. D. (Dormitory Dotter).

DR. JOHNSON (lecturing on the association of ideas): "Now, Miss Belle, what thought occurs to your mind immediately on the mention of the word 'date.'"

Miss Belle thinks a while, and then begins to blush, while the rest of the class laugh.

PROF. GREEVER (in English 4): "Now I want you to write me an interesting theme along some phase of college life and it must possess unity."

MR. BARRETT: "May we write on the character of some student?"

PROF. GREEVER: "Yes, if you can make it interesting."

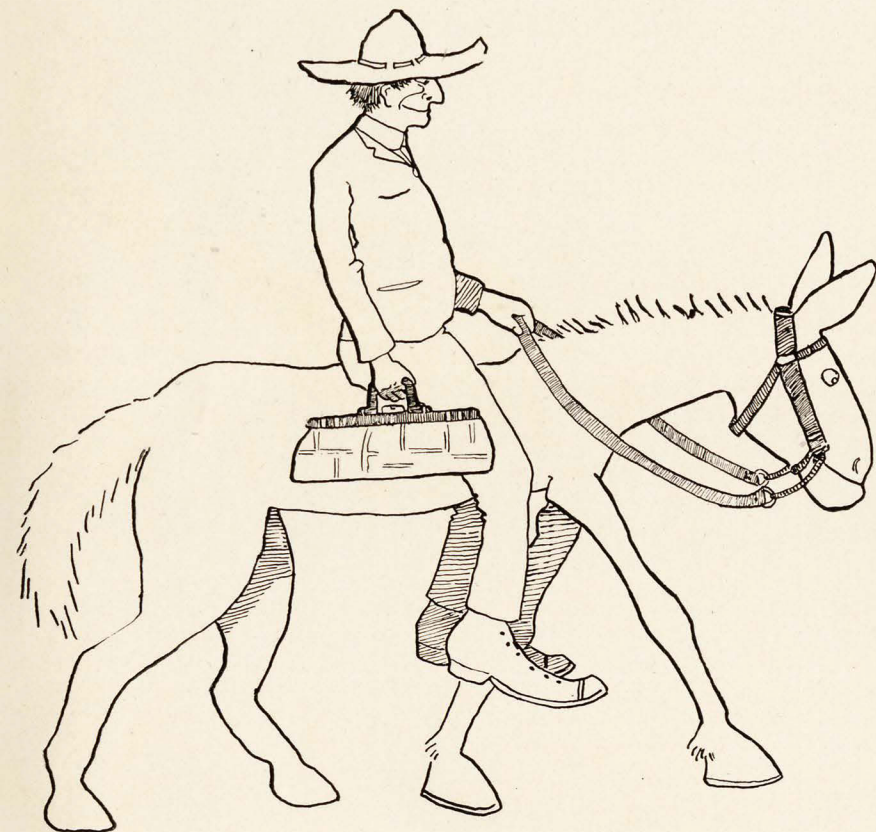

ARNOLD: "We will have to write on two to make it interesting, Professor."

PROF. GREEVER: "That is all right, just so there is unity between them."

J. P. WOODS: "Jernigen, are you going to dine anywhere next Sunday?"

JERNIGEN: "No."

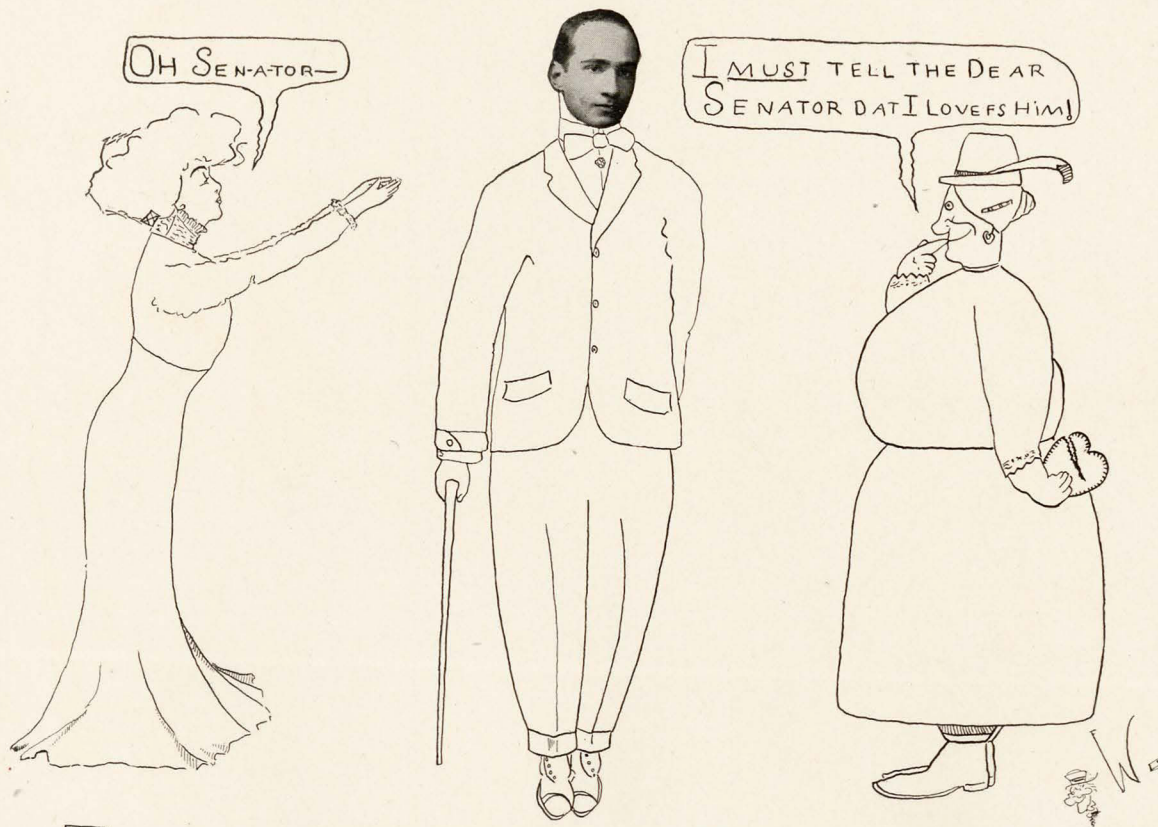

WOODS: "Won't you be hungry on Monday?"

AH THERE, SENATOR!

SWAP ABOUT IS FAIR PLAY, SAYS "THE HEART BREAKER"

Proverbs of the Solomon of the University of Arkansas

CHAPTER XIV.

1. The proverbs of Solomon, son of Solomon, a student in the University of Arkansas.
2. To know wisdom and instruction: to perceive the words of understanding.
3. A wise man will hear and increase in learning: the words of the wise and their dark sayings.
4. The fear of the Faculty is the beginning of knowledge.
5. My son, hear the instruction of thy father, but in no case follow it out.
6. My son, if they entice thee to buy foot ball season tickets, consent thou not, but get a place as guard.
7. Wisdom crieth without, let her not in.
8. Trust in a pony with all thine heart, and lean not upon thine own ability.
9. A prudent man concealeth knowledge, but the foolish leaveth his "pony" in the exam blank.
10. Boast not thyself of to-morrow, for thou knowest not what quizzes the day may bring forth.
11. A stone is heavy, and the sand weighty, but Dormitory buiscuit are heavier than both.
12. A prudent man foreseeth the evil and bestireth himself, but the simple pass not, and meet the doubtful case committee.
13. Hell and destruction are never full: so the eyes of R. C. Gibson are never satisfied.
14. Wrath is cruel, and anger is outrageous, but who is able to stand before the doubtful case committee.
15. As a bird that wandereth from her nest, so is Dr. Johnson in Psychology 8.
16. The full soul loatheth a honey comb; but to a Dormitory boy a pie is something grand.
17. Envy thou not the upper classmen, but choose to imitate his ways.
18. Withhold not a strapping from him to whom it is due, when it is in the power of thine hand to give it.
19. The "Boosters" shall inherit glory, but shame shall be the promotion of "knockers."
20. Happy is the student who abides in these sayings.

THE NAUGHT-NINE CARDINAL

Miss Hatley wants to know if anybody has any hair to give away. She wants to make—a pin cushion.

ORTO (at Cunningham's Place): "Do you ever serve lobsters here?"

WAITER: "Yes, we serve everybody; sit right down."

FREEMAN: "Price, that is my collar."

PRICE: "No, it ain't; it is mine."

FREEMAN: "How do you know?"

PRICE: "Because mine is a 14½."

A visiting young lady to "Dusty" Rhodes.

"Are you a Senior?"

DUSTY: "Yes, why?"

THE YOUNG LADY: "I thought you were a Freshman, you're so small."

MISS HATLEY: "Mr. Blair, if we are going to stand here, let's sit down."

WASSON: "Daddy, how did you lose your hair? Did it come out?"

GRUBBS: "No, it grew in."

WASSON: "Oh, that's what makes you so hair-brained, then."

MITCHELL (in Chem. Lab.): "What are you looking for?"

WINFREY: "Oh, I was only looking for the alcohol."

MISS DAVIS (in Biol. I): "Dr. Pickel what do bees do with their honey?"

DR. PICKEL: "Cell it."

W. V. WOMACK: "Why do they always represent victory as a woman?"

R. E. WOMACK: "Wait till you marry and you will find out."

By personal request Dallas Smith's name is mentioned.

SHORTY BLAIR: "Now, I suppose these lines are equal by supposition."

DR. JOHNSON (in Psychology 8): "Mr. Smith, how would you discover whether a man was a fool or not?"

SMITH: "By the questions he would ask."

DR. THOMAS: "Did I not tell you to prepare your history lesson, and here you are unable to repeat a word of it?"

D. R. BARTON: "I have always heard, Professor that history repeats itself."

BILLY BARTON (in History 2 exams): "The Crusaders were a wild and barbarous people until Peter the Hermit preached to them."

D. P. METCALF (in Geology 1 class): "A volcano is a hole in the ground which emits lavender and ashes."

Prof. James has a very large per cent of girls in his classes. What is the reason?

FROM THE WIRES

"Hello, Central! give me the girls' Dormitory, please. Hello! is that Miss Parks? This is Jim Blair. Miss Parks, I understand that you want several of the Dormitory boys to come down and see that no 'man' attempts to get into the Dormitory again to-night. I shall be glad to accommodate you. Oh, I was mistaken, then. That is all right, Miss Parks, if you ever need my services, just let me know. Good bye."

Blair to Powell Gardner, who is standing by the phone with him: "Well, Powell there is nothing doing for us to-night."

"Hello, Miss Parks! Is Miss Veasey there? Please. Hello, Miss Veasey! This is Russell. Have you a date next Sunday night? Well, I am awfully sorry. Sure thing! Well, say, don't you want to go to the Y. M. C. A. lecture Monday night? It is that Midland Opera Quintet, you know? What! busy all day! Stung again. Well, how about the show Tuesday night, Merchant of Venice, you know? Got to study? Say, how about the taffy pull Friday night? Got a date? Gee, I am in luck. Say, the Juniors and Seniors are going to have a banquet next spring; save me that, will you? Thanks. Good bye."

Late Friday afternoon: "Hello, may I speak to Miss Virginia Knox? Hello, is that you Virginia? This is Roy Gould. You know that standing date I have with you for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights? Well, I have decided not to come over to-night. Why? You know why. Then I was mistaken? Oh, well I will be there at seven-thirty. I didn't believe that, any way. Good bye."

A SOCIAL STUNT

Yes, he never had been out in society, in all the three years he had been at the University, but he was invited to the Y. M. C. A. reception and was requested to call for Miss —.

"Good bye, old lady," he said to his room mate on leaving, "I'll not be back till late."

Now he supposed a date had already been made for him with Miss —, but horror of horrors, when he called, she was not at home. He returned to the Dormitory very much depressed in spirit.

"Old lady," he said, "I am sorry I left you, I am going to stay with you now."

And one of our associate editors entered into his den and has never ventured into society again.

New Students, Take Notice

Don't act like this was your first year.

Don't allow the O. D. to run you out of the corridor. You are a free American citizen, and have certain inalienable rights, among them the right of free speech in the corridors.

Don't fail to show your "originality" in anything you undertake.

Don't miss the opportunity of drilling; if your name is not on the roll, give it to the First Sergeant.

Don't fail to study (how to work the Profs).

Don't neglect to give your opinion on all vital subjects, somebody will need it.

Don't neglect to make an early application for a chapel seat, for it is a rare treat to get to attend chapel regularly.

Don't forget to study in chapel. The exercises are held to give the Profs. practice at appearing in public.

Don't fail to have a good opinion of yourself. Remember that "valedictory" you gave at your graduation from the high school. Doubtless your road to higher honor will be made much easier because of the prestige it gave you.

Don't miss a chance to knock.

Don't you know the knockers have been the ones who have made the University one of the best in the Southwest.

Don't under any circumstances hesitate to talk in the library. Miss Brownfield is fond of noise.

Don't allow any one to persuade you into joining a literary society. They are decidedly inimicable to a student's best interest.

Don't fail, if you want a "cinch," to elect a lot of Math. Math. 1 is the hobby of many upper classmen, even.

Don't take your failure easy. If the Prof. "flunks" you, go to him and demand satisfaction.

Don't take Ec. in your Freshman year, at least. Dr. Brough is a very stern and austere gentleman, and offers no easy courses.

Don't fail to wear your uniform home Christmas. It will raise you greatly in the estimation of your friends. But try to think that you are no better than they.

Don't associate with the "Preps." Butt into the upper classmen.

Don't fail, if you study Latin, to provide yourself with a "pony" fresh from the stables of Hinds & Noble. We should profit from the learning of former sages who have worked out the problems of life for us.

Don't join the Y. M. C. A., as any manifestation of a religious spirit is demoralizing.

Don't let them keep you from joining the honor league; it is a secret organization whose object is to secure its members from punishment for cheating on examinations.

Don't centralize, but grow to be broad-minded by taking a special course.

Don't, under any circumstances, subscribe for the Weekly or a CARDINAL.

Don't try to get the lessons that the Profs. assign. They have no conception of the student's limitation.

NOT GENERALLY KNOWN

A. P. Patton really cares for girls. He says, "If I just could and knew I could, I would go out into society."

John DuLaney never had his speech of acceptance for the presidency of the Senior class prepared two weeks before the election.

Prof. Futrall is a man of meek and gentle bearing in the class room.

Joe Allen is a slave to love.

Dr. Johnson paints his lips.

"Bill" Wilkes is not related to Dr. Brough.

Overholt failed to make a date with Miss — at the Y. W. C. A. taffy pull on Thanksgiving night. He tried again for the next Sunday night and failed again.

Arthur Barret, John Freeman, and Jim Bunn, although from outward appearances good friends, are the most bitter enemies. (From one who knows.)

"Daddy" Grubbs secretly worries over the fact that he is bald headed.

Dormitory butter is composed of equal amounts of lard, tallow, axle grease, and gray hairs.

Aubrey Koser will graduate some day.

Part of the vote for president of the Garland stood: W. W. Grubbs, "L. E. Winfrey;" L. E. Winfrey, "W. W. Grubbs." Who says that they exchanged votes.

Joe Goodbar was prevailed upon by heroic measures to go to Carnall Hall. (Witnesses "Dave" Ford, Guy Smith, and "Red" Parker.)

Dr. Brough will some day cease to be polite.

J. P. Wood was unanimously elected marshall for the Lee.

The Dormitory syrup consists of 25% glucose, 50% water, 24% impurities, and 1% sugar.

Fayetteville will have a street car system in 1912 (or later).

Not over one per cent of the Latin II class ever saw a pony.

The literary societies are still alive.

Prof. Max Lentz is very fond of "carrots."

Teddy Neimeyer blondines his hair.

Edgar McCollough has a hat.

Mr. Tovey doesn't weigh 300 pounds.

Miss Claudia Wood is a teacher and not a student.

Dallas Smith is not the son of a millionaire, but the son of a very respectable man.

Jim Madding has lived in Arkansas all his life.

Shorty Moon has done one hour and twenty-seven and a half minutes' work on the CARDINAL.

Charley Tompkins has had a desperate love affair in his life time.

Prof. Droke bets on the races.

Prof. Futrall never played a game of poker in his life.

T H E N A U G H T - N I N E C A R D I N A L

Yes, John loved Lucretia, and Lucretia loved John. Paul loved Caroline, and Caroline loved Paul. John and Paul were the closest of friends, so were Lucretia and Caroline. How were all these bonds of love and friendship severed (for a time)? This is how it happened. On Friday evening, Nov. 27, John and Paul called on Lucretia and Caroline at Carnall Hall. Soon it happened that John and Caroline were talking to themselves, and Paul and Lucretia were talking in the other corner of the room. Lucretia gave Paul a box of candy that she had intended for John and John and Paul came to the dormitory by different walks that night.

A PREP: "Kings carried their sepulchres in their hands in olden days."

"The reason that the —— College is such a learned place is that most of the students take some knowledge there and never bring any away."

T. B. FREEMAN: "How can you tell an add sign, Billy?"

BILLY HUXTABLE: "Why, it is always plus."

GOULD: "Dr. Brough, the appropriations will have to be increased since Taft is elected."

DR. BROUGH: "Why, I don't see that they should."

GOULD: "They will have a big 'Bill' to contend with."

A Dormitory boy labelled a piece of butter thus: "Best artificial butter—five cents a pound."

A table orderly was about to "stick" him, but he apologized thus: "I was mistaken. The butter is not the best artificial butter, and it did not cost five cents a pound."

AN OKLAHOMA FOOT BALL PLAYER: "Huntley, the University of Arkansas never turns out any good men."

HUNTLEY: "Sure not, it lets the good men go on and graduate."

SHORTY BLAIR: "Prof. Droke, was Menelaus a trustworthy man?"

PROF. DROKE: "Why, yes, I suppose so."

SHORTY: "Well, it seems to me then that we could accept the correctness of this proof without going any further."

A STUDENT: "Prof. Purdue, why do you always take me into the museum?"

PROF. PURDUE: "Why, that is where I take all curiosities."

PROF. REYNOLDS (in Hist. II): "Mr. Wooddy, was Charlemagne such a man that young ladies would like?"

WOODDY: "I don't know whether Charlemagne was married or not?"

RED PARKER'S SOLILOQUY

Three is a crowd,
And there were three:
Mary, the parlor lamp, and me.
Two is company,
And that no doubt
Is the very reason the lamp went out.

BUDDING JOURNALISM

It is not generally known that we have an obscure genius in our midst who is branching out into literary lines. That such is the case is evident, however, from the following letter which was inadvertently left where thieving hands could thief:

SEARCY, ARK., Oct. 25, 1908.

Mr. J. W. Revel, Fayetteville, Ark.:

MY DEAR JOHNNIE: I am writing to ask permission to publish some of your letters to our daughter in our home paper. Your story of the night shirt parade is just lovely. I hope you will comply with my request.

Your prospective mother-in-law,

Mrs. B.

So now he sits behind the doore.
As he will sit for evermoore.

"And this is the chant he doth outpoore:

And Droke was there,
And Shannon, too,
And Dr. Johnson,
And Prof. Purdue."

SHEFFIELD (on a History Exam.): "The people have a right to partition the king."

A FRESHMAN: "The Mormons invaded England about 1300."

A STUDENT: "Doctor, did I pass on Economics I?"

DR. BROUGH: "Oh, yes, yes. You passed."

THE STUDENT: "What grade did I get, Doctor?"

DR. BROUGH: "Oh, I haven't graded your paper yet."

"To kiss the miss
You ought to kiss
Is not to kiss
A miss amiss;
But to kiss the miss
You ought to miss
is to kiss
A miss amiss."

Arthur Barrett was made to understand that he did not have a standing engagement for the Y. M. C. A. Lecture Course.

SOUTHMAYD: "Is a drum hollow?"

WILSON: "Yes, why?"

SOUTHMAYD: "Well, I've always heard people talk of a drum 'core' and I never could tell in what part of the drum it was."

A FRESHMAN (angry at being refused permission to escort a young lady to church): "You are particular about whom you go with, aren't you?"

SHE: "Yes."

THE FRESHMAN: "Well, I'm not."

A PREACHER (in chapel): "Procrastination is the thief of time."

NEIMEYER (in undertone): "Where does that fellow stay. I lost my watch."

A young man kissed his girl about forty times in succession and then stopped. She looked up at him with tears in her eyes and said, "Oh, dear, I am afraid you have quit loving me."

HE: "No, I haven't, but I must get my breath."

WINFREY (in Ger. I): "Miss Veasey, will you translate?"

MISS VEASEY (translating Ich will tun was du sagst, mein taffern Ritter): "I will do as you say, my brave hero."

Winfrey blushes.

W. B. GIBSON: "I think Taft is grotesque, he is so fat."

CARDEN: "No, sir, he is not."

A note which Captain Armistead found under his door:

FAYETTEVILLE, ARK., Dec. 17th, 1908.

MY DEAREST FRIEND: I wasn't at drill last Monday because I went to Grabill's to have my picture made in my uniform to send to my folks at home. I saw a letter on the wall saying that you must write out your excuse, so I have wrote mine out. I will thank you if you will take my stick off. Your humble friend,

HAL DELONGEY.

DR. BROUGH (in Econ 2 class): "The field of taxation is becoming greatly extended."

NEIMEYER (excitedly): "Dr., do you reckon they will ever put a tax on wives?"

The hypotenuse is the sloping side of a triangle.—JOHN COKER.

DR. PICKEL: "You know, don't you, Mr. Starky, that if you stand on your head that your blood will run to your head."

OSCAR: "Yes, Dr."

DR. PICKEL: "Now, why is it that when you stand on your feet the blood doesn't run to your feet?"

OSCAR: "Because, Dr., your feet are not hollow."

Cadet Hinchee always wears dirty gloves to drill. This particular evening we were to have inspection. Hinchee had one moderately dirty glove and one that was very dirty. As the Captain came down the line, Hinchee doubled up the dirtier glove in his right hand so the Captain would not see it.

CAPT. ARMISTEAD (grasping Hinchee by the left hand): "Now, young man what do you mean by wearing such dirty gloves? Here, First Sergeant, take this man's name."

Hinchee began to make excuses.

CAPT.: "If you can find a dirtier glove in the whole Battalion, I will let you off."

Hinchee promptly held up his right hand.

MISS —: "What is the shape of a kiss?"

GUY SMITH: "It is of an elliptical shape. (A lip tickle.)"

PROF. GREEVER: "Mr. George, is there anything in Green's 'Conquest of Ireland' that impressed you much?"

GEORGE: "No I believe not."

PROF. GREEVER: "Well, was there anything that depressed you?"

DR. JOHNSON: "Psy. is a study of one's own mind."

I. L. GEORGE: "How long will it take me to finish a course in Psy.?"

DR. JOHNSON: "Oh, about two weeks."

DR. PICKEL: "Mr. Holtzclaw, how many kinds of jay birds are there?"

HOLTZCLAW: "Two, Professor, male and female."

A FRESHMAN (in History 2 Exam): "The battle of Trafalgar was fought on the sea, therefore it is sometimes called the batt'e of Waterloo."

J. G. ARNOLD (defining the imperfect tense in Spanish): "The imperfect tense is used to express a future action, in pasttime, which never happened at all."

JOE GOODBAR (at the reception at the Methodist Church): "Miss —, you are the only—, er—"

SHE: "But, Mr. Goodbar, they want to turn out the lights, and we had really better go."

AN UNKNOWN VOICE: "What in the world are you doing here at this late hour? I have got to turn these lights out."

PROF. GREEVER: "Mr. Barret, you were absent last time, were you not?"

BARRET: "No, Professor, this is the first time I have made my appearance."

PROF. GREEVER: "I guess we will have to give you an encore."

J. B. BUNN: "Gas should not be confined, that is why I talk so much."

DR. JOHNSON: "The students are mercenary. Why, there are on'y seven taking logic."

PROF. REYNOLDS: "Girls are the most peculiar creatures I ever saw. One day they wear a narrow hat, the next day a merry widow, and some days they don't wear any at all. And it is the same way with clothes."

PROF. FUTRALL (at a foot ball mass meeting): "I recall a Latin motto which I think is very appropriate for the student body before the game to-morrow, 'Soc et tuum.'"

THIS SPACE RESERVED AND PAID FOR BY THE "RHODES BROS."

REPUBLICAN CLUB

The nucleus of the Republican Club consists of the Republican members of the Economic 8 class. It is a secret organization, whose membership is limited to nine. Its primary object was to secure an organization that could successfully uphold the Republican principles in the debates in Economics 8. The club will doubtless, later, play an important part in the politics of the state.

MEMBERS

- J. G. Arnold, President of the Club. Ambition—to become a country post master under the Republican administration.
- O. J. Ferguson. Destiny—leader of a world wide movement for the equalization of the negro and white races.
- F. J. George. Strongest conviction—Dr. Brough is very radical on the tariff question.
- A. B. Mustain. Characteristic—a meek and gentle disposition.
- I. L. George. Destiny—a creature of the vested interests.
- Guy Smith. Destiny—a mail clerk during Taft's administration on one of the main "Trunk" line rail roads of the United States.
- H. M. Keck. Peculiarity—a child-like confidence in President Roosevelt's theories.
- George Moore. "The negro is not a beast."
- Oscar Starky. "Low tariff and poverty, high tariff and prosperity."
- K. E. N. Cole. "Because my father is a Democrat, is no reason why I should be."

A PETITION

We, the undersigned, do hereby petition those misguided persons who reign supreme over Ella Carnall Hall, that the ten o'clock rule, so stringently enforced in the aforesaid biddy coop, be hereafter abolished. Signed:

J. C. ALLEN,
J. B. BUNN,
GUY SMITH.

MISS B——: "Mr. Jernigen, why don't you get some one to accompany you on the troubled ocean of life?"

JERNIGEN: "I would, if I knew the ocean would always be the Pacific."

PATTON: "When I get to heaven I am going to ask Shakespeare if he really wrote all these plays."

RORIE: "Maybe he will not be there."

PATTON: "Then you can ask him."

DR. PICKEL (in Biology II): "Miss King, what are the principal kinds of food?"

MISS KING: "Oxygen and water."

DR. PICKEL: "Miss King, it is evident that you stay at the Dormitory."

MISS GIBSON (after the Mathesian reception): "I never knew Mr. Woods was so strong before."

"Well, what are you all laughing at?"

ENGINEERING DICTIONARY

A combination of cranks—the Faculty.

Compression—the effect of a couple thoroughly (em)braced

Satisfactory face contact—a kiss.

Electric lamp—a bottle containing a burning hairpin.

A RECRUIT

BUGLE-CORPS.

Hindoo Hoodoo

In the 1906th year, in the fifth month, on the fifth day of the month, it came to pass that there was a famine in the land. And a certain man of India said unto his son: Ghandi go thou to America where there is plenty and to spare, and get you an education. And Ghandi and Khosla, and their kinsmen, Whora and Hussian, came to America, even as far as the University of Arkansas. And they found the land flowing with milk and honey, and they made a covenant with the Dormitory boys that they would live in peace.

Then came all the boys of Hill Hall to Gibson unto his room, saying, "Behold we are thy bone and thy flesh." So all the boys of Hill Hall came to Gibson unto his room, and they appointed him leader over them, to have some fun out of the Hindoos.

And he divided the twelve men into two companies, one at each window, and he put a string into every man's hand, and a can, and the string through the can. And the Hindoos' room was directly under Gibson and his Hill-Hallites. It was about the twelfth watch.

And he said unto them, look on me and do as I do; and, behold, when I come to the edge of the window it shall be that, as I do, so shall ye do. When I pull the string through the can I and all they that are with me, then yell ye also, on every side and say, the sword of Mohammed and of Gibson. And they stood every man in his place, and did as he was bidden. And the Hindoos were exceedingly amazed, and said, "It is the voice of Mohammed."

All the Hindoos ran and cried and fled, leaving behind them their shoes, their shirts, their trousers and all their apparel. And the Hill-Hallites gathered themselves out of all Hill Hall, and pursued after the Hindoos and they took two prisoners of the Hindoos, Ghandi and Khosla. And the Hindoos took council together and joined themselves with the Senior Committee to get vengeance.

Something That Might Have Happened

One moonlight night a young lady and a young man stopped at the front entrance to the main building. They had come to a lecture to be given in chapel, but for some reason they were very early. The girl seated herself on the steps, doubtless she was tired. She drew her skirts closely about her and looked at her companion invitingly. He sat down so close to her that his arm reached protectingly along the step just behind the young lady's back. The moon was shining brightly, and doubtless the moon was responsible for what happened. Bill pondered for a long time. He leaned towards her and drew her head towards his own with his hand.

"Don't," she said, "you will muss my hair." And the next instance it was mussed by a cataract of H₂O from Prof. Shannon's room above.

Of course they were absent from the lecture that night. When he reached home that night he was at no loss to account for his damp appearance. He said, "That fool waiter down at Cunningham's turned a pitcher of water over on me."

THE FAREWELL

May the honor of the University ne'er be diminished,
By the character of CARDINAL we have published;
But may it become still more extended,
As a result of the labor we have expended.
From the beginning, our weakness we've lamented,
Because never were we talented
To tell jokes, or write up roasts,
And thus, of our ability we have made no boasts.
Our only desire, throughout the year you see,
Has been to tell of happenings at the University
That are of much interest to you,
And the doing of which you never will rue.
And to present to you a spectrum of University life
In its diversified colors, with its strife,
Its comfort, its pleasure, its sorrow,
Its dread of the Ps to be made on the morrow.
Many, many risks we've run of making Ps
And seldom, very seldom, have we made Es
As a result of the labor expended,
Upon which this book's success has depended.
Well we are now done the work,
And no part of the task did we shirk.
Happy will we be if this book pleases you,
And if it reflects honor on our dear old U.

THE Typewriter industry, which began with the invention of the Remington thirty-seven years ago, has grown to such proportions that it takes an enormous factory to turn out enough machines to supply the present demand. This demand took a big leap on the advent lately of the Nos. 10 and 11 models, when improvements long contemplated and thoroughly tested were embodied in Remington construction.

IMPROVEMENTS

Double Wheel Escapement
Variable Line Spacer
Column Selector and Back Spacer
Built in Decimal Tabulator
Visible Writing
Permanent Alignment Type Bars
Automatic Ribbon Movement

¶ In four months we have sold forty-five thousand of these new model machines and the demand continues to increase. If you have any doubt as to the popularity of them write us for a list of delighted customers who are now using them.

FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS THROUGH THE Fort Smith Commercial College

Into the office of a Business Man, Manufacturer, Banker, Railway Official or Attorney is the history of the best educated and most efficient business builders of the Southwest.

The success of our graduates proves that our COMMERCIAL COLLEGE is not a branch school.

You may enroll on any week day. Your term begins the day you enter.

Your salary begins the day after you graduate.

The sooner you enter, the sooner you will become a builder of your own fortune.

Good students are cordially invited to visit the College, write for a catalog and enroll.

Fort Smith, Arkansas

Dear Student,

Enter our Commercial College, use our standard typewriters, adding machines, mimeographs, practical text books, modern Bank, Business and Office Practice Course, and you will be qualified for business and a responsible position.

Very truly,

Masonic Temple

THE RIGHT PLACE TO BUY YOUR FURNITURE

¶ We offer the Arkansas public better service than any other furniture store in the State.

¶ Our store is twice the size of any other furniture store in the State---larger than any of those in Memphis and equals those of St. Louis.

¶ We offer you a large variety from which to choose in both fine and staple furniture, carpets, rugs, crockery and kitchen furniture.

¶ If you bear in mind that we furnished the largest hotel ever built in St. Louis---the Marquette---you will realize that it is not necessary to go away from home for either quality or price.
